

TURISTS ASKED TO PREVENT FIRES

Michigan Foresters Requested to Use Care in Amateurs of State to Stop Blazes

When riding along trunk lines north of a line from Bay City to Muskegon, the tourist will notice posters every few miles calling his attention to the fact that he is in the forest-fire zone and to help prevent fires. Other signs will remind him to be careful about throwing away lighted tobacco to leave his camp fires safe and that fire lines will run good game cover.

If he is observant, he will note that the kind, quantity and quality of the forest or brush growth varies considerably from place to place. These variations in kind and quantity of forest cover are due largely to how much or how little forest fires have gone over the country.

These open, barren stretches with nothing but pine stumps, old stumps, sweet fern and grass have been burned repeatedly. The areas of poplar, oak and pine are more or less covered with more or less second growth since the land was first lumbered. The good stands of second growth hardwood and pine have probably had but little or no fire.

Mr. Tourist, has only to decide whether or not he prefers the open, barren stretches with nothing but pine stumps, old stumps, sweet fern and grass have been burned repeatedly. The areas of poplar, oak and pine are more or less covered with more or less second growth since the land was first lumbered. The good stands of second growth hardwood and pine have probably had but little or no fire.

prevention and suppression activities which he will notice in his travels will be the forest fire look-out towers and fire lines running through the wild land. Whenever he sees the American flag flying from the lookout tower, he will know that the lookout man is on duty and that the fire wardens are either at the telephone awaiting calls or out on fire.

There are some wonderful views of northern Michigan from those lookout towers for those who care to rise the climb. The Department of Conservation assumes no responsibility for harm which may come to any party climbing the towers.

If the traveler drives off the main trunk line and gets back into the wilder areas, he may run on to the fire lines built by the Department of Conservation. They can easily be mistaken for roads and many of them are used as roads.

If all the travelers and tourists will remember that they, too, are a part of the forest fire protection and suppression organization, in that, if they use care with their camp fire, matches and tobacco, they can keep fires from starting, the program of making Michigan a more beautiful state for travel will be added materially.

LINDBERGH IS BUSY CORRECTING PROOF

Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh has been busily correcting the first proofs of his book. The unexpected extent of his fame has made him more critical than ever in the review of his work. Word by word he is correcting it before he is through with it. His publishers will have over 100 pages of his manuscript in his own handwriting.

The noted young aviator has exchanged real admiration in the way he refuses to hurry publication of his story. Had he been willing to dash off a careless job he might have taken advantage of the publicity and notoriety and made a lot of money quickly.

Instead, he insists that the book shall be the most accurate and perfect account of his life, his traumatic flight, his experiences before and after, facts that he can possibly put together.
