Popular Volumes Of Fiction And Non-Fiction On List

Anné Sedgwick's "The Old Countess" heads the list of 44 new books added to the Baldwin Public Library during the past two weeks. This book, by the author of "The Little French Girl," has been a best seller for several months. It is a character study of an amazing old woman around whom the lives of three young persons center.

LAFAYETTE

Don Burroughs, Detroit boy and a chap who has gone a long way since he first accepted the stage as a profession with Vaughan Glazer in 1918, will join the National Players, Inc., as leading man next Sunday afternoon. O. D. Woodward has selected the George Cohan comedy, "The Meanest Man in the World," as the vehicle in which to again introduce Mr. Burroughs to his many Detroit friends.

phying. The producer, Jed Harris, and the author-directors of the play, Phillip Dunning and George Abbott, gave the same care and attention to the excellent script and the casting and rehearsals as they did to the original New York production. They gathered a company which can hardly be improved upon and they gave Detroit as near a perfect presentation as has been seen in many years. If there is one disappointed patron of "Broadway," he must be hiding himself somewhere in the tall timbers, for nothing but praise is heard.

New York average about three times weekly that of "Abie" in New York owing to the higher scale. In Detroit, however, the scale of "Broadway" is at the same low range of prices as "Abie."

Protected by Copper Your home can have the protection that only Copper gives. FOR hundreds of years copper has been used to protect and preserve the staunch timbers of seagoing vessels, large and small. Until the successful development of COPPERCLAD, however, pure copper for roofing was expensive and out of reach of the average house-owner. Now the Anaconda-Flintkots COPPERCLAD Single brings pure copper roofing within the reach of all. Furthermore, it makes it possible for you to cover your roofs at one-third the cost of sheet copper, and at a saving of 70% in labor. COPPERCLAD is the lifetime roofing of enduring beauty. You Owe it to Them— WHAT will become of those who depend upon you when your usefulness, your ability to earn a regular income comes to an end? Have you provided for their future and your own as well? How much of your present earnings are you putting aside to guarantee your freedom from worry when age creeps along? You owe it to those dependent upon you to give a thought to your future and to theirs. Thrift is the basic habit to freedom and sound investing is the road to financial independence. You must pay for that freedom out of your present earnings; you must bring now—the coupon will bring you the details. THE MILTON STRAUSS CORPORATION GEORGE H. WHEN MAN CO-OPERATES WITH NATURE MUCH CAN BE ACCOMPLISHED. O certain people who live within the narrow circle of city life the beauties of Nature make no appeal; but to most, her sturdy oaks and delicate flowers, her lakes and rolling landscapes, are a revelation. They are anxious to co-operate with her in surrounding their homes with a beautiful natural setting. For thirty years such has been the work of the residents of West Bloomfield Lakes. Old forest trees, which stood on the lakes' heavily wooded shores a hundred years ago, have been preserved and still cast their reflections on the water. Orchards and other trees have been planted and are now well grown, as well as numerous groves of pines. In the woods and meadows many varieties of flowers have been naturalized. Nature placed these lakes at a high altitude, over half again higher than the Detroit River, so that their waters flow away through three river systems, northeast, southeast and west, into Lake St. Clair and Lake Erie. Each cool summer breeze finds easy access to their surfaces, and assisted by their spring-fed waters, carries a refreshing atmosphere through the surrounding country.

WEST BLOOMFIELD LAKES Orchard Lake and Pine have been made a State Game Preserve, and wild ducks and other water fowl are now flocking to these lakes during the migrating seasons. Their presence, and that of the many squirrels and birds in the surrounding forests, add a touch of the wilderness to modern country life. Residents among these lakes are carefully restricting their property to preserve permanently the natural loveliness of their homes. In one tract, 1200 acres are under the same carefully drawn restrictions, controlling more than 5 miles of lakeshore. Homes are built to live in the year around where natural locations make a beautiful setting. The spirit of the country is attracting others away from the city to live among the hills and lakes of West Bloomfield. HAROLD LEE WARD, Manager
