QUET OF LENTEN SEASON REIGNS

Lull in Village Social Circle; Churches Hold Services

Birmingham and Bloomfield societies in the throes of the Lenten quietude. A few small, private parties, little groups of intimate friends, and churchy little dinner parties are filling the pre-Easter lull. As an increased interest in church affairs is occupying a large part of the interest of the village.

The Episcopal Church fair to be given in the summer is bringing the various committees together frequently for all-body meetings, sewing, with only a break for lunch.

A special study club meeting regularly every Monday afternoon in the Community House under the direction of the Mrs. Frances Skinner. It is being honored by St. Andrew's Episcopal Church.

Special Lenten services are being held regularly by the Catholic and Episcopal churches. These are evening services at the Holy Name Chapel on Wednesday and Friday at 8 p. m.

Besides the regular communion service at 8 a. m. and the morning worship at 11 a. m. on Sunday, St. James Episcopal Church is having special services every day in the week until Holy Week, which begins April 11.

At 3:30 p. m. Thursday, quiet hour is observed at the church, confessional instruction is being given at 4 p. m. Friday. The junior communion class meets at 5 p. m. Sunday and a service program at the church school is given by Mrs. M. Monday. Intercessions are made at 9:30 p. m. Tuesday and at 8:10 and again at 10:45 Wednesday, there is Holy communion. Attendance at all these services is large.
