Congratulations Birmingham

PROSPERITY WEEK is a fitting program for a progressive community looking to the future.

While other communities are experiencing alternate booms and depressions Birmingham is maintaining a steady growth of homes and prosperity. The continual building of beautiful and artistic homes indicates the desirability of Birmingham as a residential community.

We have been privileged to share in beautifying Birmingham and hope to continue to add our share to the larger and better Birmingham of the future.

WATER PUMP IMPROVEMENT NEARS FINISH

Huge Derrick Lifts Three Ton Pumper At Baldwin And West Maple

BETTER SUPPLY SEEN

Re-assembling of water pump No. 2, at Baldwin and west Maple avenue, which has recently undergone a complete overhauling, was to commence today, according to Manager James W. Parry. The pump is expected to be in working order again by the end of the week.

It supplied water to the southwestern part of Birmingham. No suspension of water service is contemplated while the work is going on.

The pump has been taken out and overhauled during the last few days, after four years of steady work. Only a few minor parts had to be replaced, Mr. Parry said, the whole job, including the taking up of the pump which weighs some three tons by a derrick, costing between $150 and $200.

Better pumping and an increase in capacity of the pump, which is already more than 500,000 gallons a day, are expected to result from the overhauling process.

JURY EXCUSED TILL DECEMBER

Additional Jury Cases Unlikely In September Term, Officials Decide

Because it is considered unlikely that any more jury cases will be heard in the Pontiac circuit court before the opening of the December term, jurors who have been serving on the September term are excused today, but are subject to call.

All but the 24 jurors who sat on the two cases completed Wednesday were excused. Chancery cases will be disposed of by the judges during the remainder of the September term.

All Over

Two stuttering blacksmiths had finished heating a piece of pig iron, and one placed it upon the anvil with a pair of tongs.

"H-h-h-h-h-hit it," he stuttered to his helper.

"Wh-wh-wh-wh-where?" asked the other.

"Ah, h-h-h-h-hell, we'll have to h-h-h-heat it again now."—Oklahoma Whirlwind.

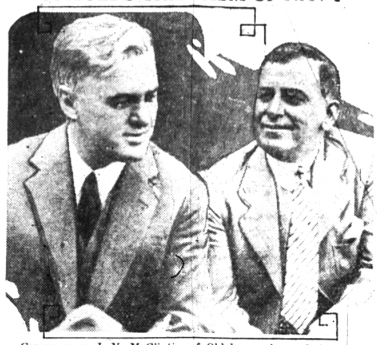
UPHOLDS CRITICISM OF NAVY



Congressman J. V. McClintic, of Oklahoma, dean of that state's delegation in congress, and ranking Democratic member of the naval affairs committee, has been upholding Admiral Magruder's criticism of the navy. He's shown here, right, talking it over with Congressman Otis Wingo, of Arkansas, at Hot Springs, Ark.

MORE CHILDREN TAKE TO BOOKS IN NATIONAL WEEK, SAYS LIBRARIAN

With the opening of National Book Week today, which was originally announced for last Monday, a large number of new books, particularly of children's books, is on the shelves of the Baldwin Public library, ready to go out. National Book week was originally called "Children's Book Week," and for almost a decade was observed as that. This year, even though the effort to create interest in books is increasing in scope to include adults as well, emphasis is still being placed on the attraction of children to reading.

"The idea of book week is to interest new people in books and reading, as well as to, increase the interest of persons already using the library", said Mrs. Nancy B. Thomas, librarian at the Baldwin library. "The facilities of this library are increasing all the time, and when we are in the new building, the attractions will be even greater. We should like to have two-thirds of the population of this village using the library."

One list of new children's books included four fiction books and six of other types. Most seasonable of the fiction books is "The Long Pass," by Ralph H. Barbour. As its title suggests, it is a story of football, and a thrilling one. Morley's "Donkey John of the Toy Valley," Lucy Fitch Perkins' "The American Twins of the Revolution," and Ethel Calvert Phillips' "Black-Eyed Susan," complete the list of fiction books, put out yesterday.

One picture book, "Johnny Crow's Party" and three other books for the little folks are on the non-fiction list. "The Cry Baby Chicken," by Madge Bigham, "The Goody- Naughty Book," by Sarah Coney Ripper, and a second copy of A. A. Milne's "Winnie the Pooh" are for the very young youngsters. Denton's "New Program Books," a group of dialogues and recitations for various occasions, and Kate Greenway's "Game Book" complete the list.

Other new children's books on the shelves today are Skinner's "Beck Lander," Gardener's "Father's Gone a-Whaling," Brown's "Under the Rowan Tree," Ortun's "Francing Pat," an additional copy of Dodge's "Hans Brinker," and of Louisa M. Alcott's "Little Men," Stuart's the "Young Folks' Book of Other Lands," Couch's "The Splendid Spur," Robinson's "Sarah's Dakin," Skinner's "Rosello of the North," Emerson's "A Merry-Go-Round of Modern Tales," Horne's, "The Good Natured Bear," Byrant's "Gordon," Dix's "Merrylips," Thompson's "Silver Pennies," Phillips' "The Popover Family," Pier's "Harding of St. Timothy's" and LaRue's "Under the Story Tree."

The new adult books recently acquired include a two-volume edition of "Theodore Roosevelt and his Time," by Bishop, Seelman's "Our Time," also in two volumes and Eliza Orne White's "Diana's Rose Bush." More new ones will be acquired this week, Mrs. Thomas said.

DEATH INCREASE LAID TO SCANT CLOTHES

"I told-you-sos," who have been finding much fault with the scanty attire of modern young women and their indulgence in cigarettes and modern dancing, feel they have won a victory in the recent British vital statistics. These indicate an increase in the death rate of young unmarried women between the ages of 18 and 27.

J. F. Junkin, manager of a Canadian insurance company, believes the increased death rate is due to the competition of young women with men in business and industry which has subjected women to strains and risks unknown to prewar women.

Dame Mary Scharlieb, a prominent Hadley street physician, believes cigarettes are the chief cause of the decline in the health of young women.

"If women confined themselves to five cigarettes a day they might not suffer great physicial harm, but the rapidly growing habit of incessant smoking is very deleterious to the heart and nervous system," says Dame Mary. She also says women do not pay enough attention to their diet and do not wear warm enough clothing to protect their health in the English climate.

WHO'S WHO IN THE DAY'S NEWS

WASHINGTON CREDITED FOR UNIFIED ARMY, NAVY

By CURTIS D. WILBUR

Secretary of the Navy

Curtis Dwight Wilbur was born at Boonesboro, Ia., May 10, 1867. He was a graduate of the United States Naval Academy in the class of 1888, but resigned from the navy in the same year. He began the practice of law in Los Angeles, Cal., in 1894, becoming, in 1922, chief justice of the supreme court of the state. Wilbur was appointed secretary of the navy by President Coolidge in 1924.

We are indebted to George Washington not only for the idea that a navy yard is an integral part of the national defense, and that it is well to dispense these agencies of national defense in different localities, but we are also indebted to him for the idea of a unified defense. George Washington not only believed in the unified national defense, but when the Constitution of the United States was drafted, he saw to it that that unity was fixed beyond all possibility of change.

SEC. WILBUR

The president of the United States was made commander in chief of both the army and navy, and congress was charged with the responsibility for making appropriations for both branches of the national defense.

The secretary of the navy was an office not thought of originally, for this office was first filled by the secretary of war. Later on, however, the secretary of war found the duties too onerous, and requested that congress establish a secretary for the navy in order that the example of most foreign nations should be followed in the building up of this branch of the national defense.

The secretary of the treasury, no doubt, found the building of ships for the navy an onerous duty to which his department was unsuited.

It is true that in the development of the plans of the department of the navy and of war, there are some points where their respective duties overlapped, and although most of these points have been adjusted between the army and navy in consultation, if there is any conflict between them which cannot be reconciled by agreement between the two services, the president of the United States can settle those difficulties by a stroke of the pen placed in his hands by the Father of his Country.

Two lakes in the province of Ontario will be named for Nungesser and Coli, the lost French aviators.

Army Inspector

Brig. Gen. William C. Rivers succeeds Maj. Gen. Eli A. Helmick, retired, as inspector general of the U. S. army. General Rivers was graduated from the U. S. Military Academy in 1894.

HAMILTON AVE. PLAN STUDIED

Action on the widening of Hamilton avenue five feet on both sides of the street was postponed until Village Manager James W. Parry can study the matter more in detail, by a decision of the commission. The petition would have five feet taken from the north side of the taken from the north side of the First National Bank building on Woodward and Hamilton avenues. There is a bend in the street, however, before it comes to Woodward avenue and Manager Parry believes a solution can be reached whereby the street may be widened and the bend straightened without taking from the bank's property.
