WHAT TO WEAR, AND HOW TO WEAR IT

By LUCY CLAIRE
Fashion Expert—Central Press and the Eccentric

One wonders if the flair for the flare and the lavish use of fur on our new winter coats is any indication we are going to have a cold winter. So much wolf and lynx are being used this year that wolf and lynx farms will be the order of the day if it keeps up, just as fox farms sprang into existence when the fox had to substitute his coat to keep the Modish Eves warm. Not that fox is not also modish at the moment, but the fox is now being born for the purpose, and knows it, while the wolf and lynx of foreign climes are preparing to mobilize against a raid.

But the new coats, to say the least, are more practical than our pencil silhouette outer garments which we have been wearing since the war. The flare at the hip fastening serves to furnish enough fulness to keep the coat well supported to the knees, thus affording protection from the cold.

There is a new method, also, of handling the fur which keeps it from edging, both on collar and cuffs. The fur cuffs are set up inside.

From the wrist an inch or two, frequently four inches, and the collar is so ingeniously fashioned that it rises separately from the reverses and is set on the coat about four inches below the finished neckline with strong tailor stitches. The fur is set on about four inches from the edge of the cloth collar. This does two things: It prevents the fur from matting, due to constant rubbing against the neck, and allows the collar to be thrown back a few inches warm. Not that fox is not also modish at the moment, but the fox is now being born for the purpose, and knows it, while the wolf and lynx of foreign climes are preparing to mobilize against a raid.

Know Your Sweetheart by His Handwriting

Is He Tenacious?

Let's Train

Has he the bulldog grip? Has he this grip on the purpose of life or some whim a bulldog grip on him?

Tenacity of purpose is a rare quality. When some people are tenacious when they should not be and not enough so when they should be, then they are called stubborn.

If you would know a writer's mental attitude on this subject without consulting him in argument, simply look for the bar book. If you find that at the end of a chapter or terminal he makes a lip-book, similar to a lip-book, the conclusion may be safely reached that this writer works as he lies on some of his pet hobbies or theories, he would be a winner.

If the bar book of the letter T is brought up in its finish on the left-hand side of the manuscript, the writer has little money and is usually influenced adversely when under emotional strain. Heavy downstrokes also denote tenacity. Still other signs of tenacity are studied.

LIVING AND LOVING

By MRS. VIRGINIA LEE
WOMEN'S INFERIOR COMPLEX

Women, they say, have an inferiority complex that makes them sensitive. I am beginning to think it is true. The letters that I get from girls and imagine themselves in love, show that they are quite ready to be down and let the "lords of creation" walk over them. Assert your rights, girls! Have some spirit! The boys will like you all the more for it.

The girl who writes the following has this timid attitude. She is so afraid of offending her boy friend:

"Dear Mrs. Lee: I am a girl 17 years old and have met a boy I like real well. He is out of town about two or three times a week. He always tells me where he has to go and I believe he tells me the truth. He's about the nicest boy in town that I have gone with. Some of his friends that are jealous of us going together say he's with other girls when he's out of town. One night he was gone and a friend and I went riding with some of her friends. The next day I told him and he never got mad. I'm jealous of him with his friends and he told me he was jealous of me. One afternoon one of my friends used to go with let us girls drive his car. My friend saw me and that that was going with him again. Now he acts like he can't trust me when he's out of town. He broke a date with me Saturday night and Sunday. Do you think if he loved me he would have broken those dates? He says he doesn't want to go with any girl steady. Mrs. Lee, I would be grateful for any advice you could give."

"BROKEN HEARTED"

I wonder if you will take my advice for it is not to go about this chap. He does not want you to have any boy friends to go steady with.

"LONELY ONE"

I'd stop writing notes and waste no more time on him, my dear. Boys and girls who "get mad" without adequate cause and "breaken't the heart to apologize" are not worth spending one's time on. Maybe the notes bore him a bit; have about it.

Cooking by Clock—

In the Arabian tale, a nicely prepared meal promptly made its appearance out of the air when Aladdin rubbed his Wonderful Lamp.

Nowadays, in Electric Range cooking, the magic lamp is replaced with a clock, which automatically attends to the cooking. All you have to do is to put the food in the range, set the clock—and forget the kitchen till dinner-time.

Electric Range cooking is done without hovering over a hot fire, without watching, without trouble or anxiety, without smoke or dust or fumes—and with perfect cleanliness.

A call at our office to inspect the range and hear more about it will interest you.
