WHAT TO WEAR AND HOW

By LUCY CLAIRE Fashion Expert for Central Press and The Eccentric

Unquestionably women have taken sports clothing to their hearts and voted it best beloved in formal afternoon frocks for evening gowns make such an appeal to the average woman of fashion as do these sturdy-of-fabric, simple-of-line costumes for the out of doors. But these sports costumes are not what they used to be. Each detail today demands careful attention. Not only appropriate-ness, but common sense must be taken into consideration. The costume must be suited to the degree of informality or utilitarianism, as well as to one's relation to the occasion.

The one at the left, which is intended for the outdoors at horse show or golf match, or for street wear, varies strict severity by its soft lines and accompanying accessories. The ensemble is of blue jersey with a three-quarter coat banded with stripes of blue and gray. The frock is trimmed with the same banding, the blouse carrying an unusually deep yoke striped fabric softens outlines and lends a slightly formal note.

Shoes worn with such a costume are of the simple kidskin variety favored for sports, but with moderate broad heels, abandoning both the heelless type of sport shoe and worn in town. Either would effectively throw the costume out of character. This is the danger line in sports clothes. They are easily thrown out of character by the wrong accessories.

CARE NEEDED IN CHOOSING HAT

One should never buy merely a pretty hat. Your hat should be becoming to you, in size, style and color. It must also go well with your gowns and be appropriate to the occasions on which you will wear it.

Small, tight-fitting hats are in style this season, with a few large hats always in the market. Select your hat in front of a full-length mirror, for it should harmonize with your figure as if it were a part of you.

Children Should Care For Themselves

A mother never does her full duty by her children until she teaches them to take care of themselves—to brush their teeth without being told, to wash clean, to keep their shoes and nails tidy, and to go to bed at the proper time.

In most families, the mother has to be continually on the job to see that these things are done. A help in training children to be dependable is to make out a daily program. Post this up somewhere that they may understand exactly what is expected of them.

Ruth Lantz, 8-year-old St. Paul girl, swallowed the wishbone of a chicken and an operation was necessary to save her life.

Simple Autographs Best For Photos

Is it proper to autograph photos? If so, will you please tell the correct way to autograph photographs for girl friends, relations, and a boy friend? asks R.

It is correct to autograph photographs, if you wish to, though many people believe that a photograph with out an autograph is more personal than a photograph with one. As a matter of fact, it is reasonable to assume that if we know the person well enough to have a photograph, we really do not need the handwriting and name on it to identify it.

However, no matter how well you know the person, you should use the most judicious taste about what you write on the photograph. "To Jack from Elsie" is an autograph that shows good taste for a girl to write on the photograph that she gives to a boy.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS

BY MARY MORTON

MENU HINT
Cold sliced meat or meat loaf for the guest dinner saves a lot of last minute work for the woman who does her own cooking. Either may be prepared the day before. As both the hostess and the guest enjoy the occasion more when the former is not tired out, it is well to consider such a dish when making out your menu. A hot soup as a first course is a good to serve when cold meat is used and the potatoes should be scalloped, creamed or otherwise prepared so as not to need gravy.

Today's Recipes
Veal Loaf—Select two and one-half pounds of lean veal. An inexpensive cut if it has bone will serve the purpose. Cook this until the meat falls off the bone. Pour the meat into small pieces. Arrange slices of hard boiled egg in the bottom of a loaf dish, then a layer of meat, followed by a layer of thinly sliced sweet pickles, then another layer of meat and above this a layer of canned peas. Repeat until the dish is filled (use six sweet pickles and about one-half cups of canned peas from which the liquor has been drained). Then cover all pour the meat juice, which will fill the loaf. Let stand overnight and turn out on a platter garnished with lettuce.

WITH WOMEN of TODAY

BY MRS. LILIAN CAMPBELL

Mexico affords few opportunities for business training for young women according to Miss Celia Tovar of Mexico City, so that the Mexican girls rarely come to the United States to seek their fortune.

Miss Tovar did "Spanish correspondence for a Wall Street firm three years ago," she says. Now she is studying at the National Young Women's Christian Association school in New York.

"I am back here again to study your marvelous physical training methods and to take them back to our girls," she states. "They need better health and new ideas from the rest of the world."

She comes from the W. W. C. A. of Mexico City, of which Dr. Antonio Urean, a widely-known woman physician, is president. Other women high in educational circles are on the committee, Miss Tovar says, while an American girl, Miss Elizabeth Curtis, of Birmingham, N. Y., is executive secretary.

Doll Dressmakers
The Misses Jessie and Janet Lowe of London, England, earn their living by making dresses for dolls. They are carrying on the business of their mother who dressed the dolls of London town for years until she died.

Made a Director
Mrs. A. H. Reeve, president of the National Congress of Parents and Teachers was recently elected a member of the board of directors of the American Country Life Association.

for Two Cents

If two cents, or less, will buy the busy home-keeper a good, full, honest hour's work for her washing, her sweeping or her dish-washing—and it does—where is the economy of using up her strength at drudgery that can be done quickly and cheaply by electricity?

Women should realize that electric household appliances free them from the heavy, strength-taxing labors of the home, and give them leisure for pleasanter things.

Prices of electric home appliances are not large. Besides, they can be bought on easy terms
