The Diary of a New Yorker
by CLARK KINNAIRD

Exclusive Central Press Dispatch to The Eccentric
NEW YORK, April 2.—So great is the demand for small, moderate-priced apartments that New Yorkers are willing to sign leases on flats as yet indicated only in floor plans, or sketched out by steel girders on fifty-foot beams, and to finance fashionable buildings before they are finished in September, but many leases have already been signed.

The Daily News, dean of the tabloids, publishes every day a cheery little character captioned "Hands of Death." In a sketch simulating a clock face are revealed "the chief medical examiner's report of death by guns, knives and poison hoize in New York since Jan. 7, 1925." In the event you are interested in such grisly statistics I will tell you that at the moment this column goes to the printer 140 persons have been killed by automobiles in the city. 100 have expired after drinking illicit liquor and 47 have been shot. On the face of this information, New York sounds rather like a frontier town, but I must admit that six years or so day-by-day acquaintance with it has made it

BRITISH AIRPLANE CARRIER ON FIRST SPEED TRIALS

Here is a view of Great Britain's newest airplane carrier, the converted H. M. S. Courageous, snapped while leaving Devonport, Eng., on her first speed trials. The monster differing radically in construction from U. S. carriers, is said to be one of the most modern monster differing radically in construction of her kind in any navy.

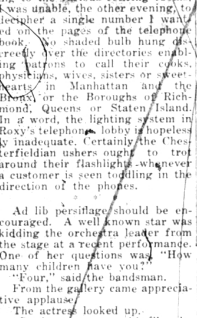

No Campaign Fund!

Louis J. Wardlaw, Fort Worth, Tex., attorney and ranchman, has announced his candidacy for the state's governorship, declaring that he will pay his own campaign expenses and refusing all contributions from friends. Wardlaw has declared himself in favor of a reward for criminals the same as predatory animals, all the schools money will allow, and reduction of taxes.

seem rather a tame town, after all.
Rox's Theater, at Fifteenth street and Seventh avenue, is known far and wide as a luxurious temple of the cinema. Rugs in Rox's are thick and soft, couches are the old-time divans of Rome, pillars are gilded, real flowers bloom in the vases, ushers are richly caparisoned and gentlemanly. Music plays dimly and voluptuously as a nimble orchestra volplanes in and out of the audience's view. And yet—and yet! I have discovered the fly in the amber, the spot on the damask, the Achilles heel of Rox's himself, perhaps. Just outside the stately telephone

Sails Ocean to Dine

Senator Andre Honorat, former French minister of education and fine arts, now head of the Cite Universitaire Foundation, crossed the ocean just to attend a dinner in his honor in New York and to confer with an American committee that is raising $400,000 to build a dormitory for American students in Paris.

Salads and Dressings

A SALAD which is always seasonable and one of which the ingredients may be found in any house supply is the following:
Raisin Salad.—Cut one-half cupful of raisins into fine pieces, cut one cupful of celery and one cupful of apples into small bits, combine with one-fourth cupful of mayonnaise dressing, one-half hour before serving and one-half cupful of broken nuts and serve on lettuce.

Almond Salad.—Take one-half cupful of mild vinegar (if strong dilute with water), using the half cupful of diluted vinegar and three-fourths of a cupful of sugar, and cook it until it spins a thread. Sauté two tablespoonfuls of gelatin in one cupful of vegetable juice, and add to the hot mixture.

Grind one-half cupful of sweet corn cobs through a meat grinder, add two-thirds of a cupful of diced pineapple and one-half cupful of blanched shredded carrots. Mix well and pour, served with mayonnaise dressing.

Beet Ready Salad Dressing.—Boil the beets until light and take an equal measure of mild vinegar. Usually, most vinegar can be diluted at least one-third to one-half. Cook over hot water until smooth and thick, beating with egg beater during the cooking. When well cooked, remove from the heat and pour into a glass jar. When wanted to use add such seasonings as are appropriate to the salad combination and enrich with whipped cream. This dressing will keep indefinitely in a cool place.

Fruit Salad.—Combine the pulp of two oranges, one grapefruit, three slices of pineapple, all spicy divided. Dilute one-third of a cupful of honey with the juices from the orange and grapefruit, and serve two tablespoonfuls over each portion. Wash, stone and cut into strips six dates. Arrange them in form of a daisy on the top of each. For the centers soak coconut in the pineapple juice and color with yellow fruit coloring.

Honey Ways

THE delicate flavor of honey appeals to most of us. It combines with other flavors and takes the place of sugar in many dishes.
Honey Ice Cream.—Take a pint of milk and cream, six eggs and a cupful of strained honey. Heat the milk in a double boiler and cook until thickened with the honey and eggs beaten together. Then add the cream and a little flavoring. When the mixture is cool freeze as usual.
Honey Pudding.—Take one-half cupful of honey, six ounces of bread crumbs, one-half cupful of

Paris Fashion Highlights

By LUCY CLAIRE
Fashion Expert for Central Press and The Eccentric

The sports ensemble and the two-piece sports frock are coming up stronger than ever, in spite of the dress-drape and swirl and flare of the afternoon frock. The truth is, it is hard to get American women away from the sports type model. It is youthful, easy of adjustment, and when once adjusted, stays put.
Moreover, Palm Beach has created a greater mode for it than ever before. Many of the best-dressed women there this season adhere pretty rigidly to the sports and the evening types of frocks, eliminating the flutter of the afternoon frock, with its uneven hemline, to semi-occasional wear. One reason for this is that the uneven hemline cannot so well be worn with the tailored coat. It really requires a draped coat. Some models have been exploited by Paris with the back of the coat long, and one or two with one side longer than the other, but they have not taken particularly well so far.
On the other hand, the one or two-piece sports model will fit under any style coat, plain or draped, without any uneven lengths, raggidly hanging below. At a recent fashion show, of over a hundred models by prominent couturiers, the great majority of frocks for daytime wear were in sports model, though frequently elegant, if simply, trimmed. Patou showed a two-piece sports frock of white jersey with an applied leaf design in varied shades of green. A one-piece sports frock by Dreoull was unadorned except by a black and white polka dot kerchief, very much the type of frock at the left of the layout, which depends upon its red and white scarf kerchief for trim. This is a two-piece frock with jumper of gray angora, and skirt, the hem of which is fagotted, of pleated crepe.
Cape Theme Prominent
The cape theme was carried through in all the various groups of this Paris showing, morning, afternoon and evening. A stunning sports model of white, pink and red in crepe de chine, was embroidered and piped in red, and worn with a red Rodier wool cape.

Bruck-Weiss showed a covert frock, in French blue, scalloped around the collar and cuffs and cape, as photographed above.
In the sports group, white, red, green and blue predominated. Jersey, tweed, silk, kashatulle and printed flannels were the principal materials. A very attractive model of printed flannel is shown at the right of the layout. This is a two-tone tweed check, with a skillful treatment of bias in varied pleats at the side of the skirt, and bias bandings at the waist.
More attention was paid to footwear in the Paris show mentioned than is usual in our showings of American designed clothes. And all the shoes were a revelation of art in footwear, as sponsored by the foremost makers of women's shoes in America. By far the greatest number of shoes was of kid. An oxford of white jade, called "Pons," and a white jade trimmed with French beige were of kid. A pair of white kid oxford shoes was divided between the white and the beige in the sports group. The oxford shoes of the kid of the shoes matched the costume in color.
