LIBRARY BOOKS INTEREST VOTERS

Two Volumes on Civic Problems Popular As City Change Election Nears

Two new books circulating today at the Baldwin Public Library are of growing interest to the voting public of Birmingham as the day of elections to decide on the proposed adoption of a city government draws near.

The books are "Land planning for city, state and nation," by James and "Practice of municipal administration," by Upson.

Other new books on the library list are: "The crisis in China," by P. T. Elherton; "Story of Geology," by Benson; "George Eliot and her times," by Haldane; "Best plays of 1926-1927," edited by Burns Mantle; "Four series of plays," edited by G. B. Baker; "Pictorial Golf," by H. B. Martin; "Promised Land," by Belmont and "Claire Ambler," by Booth Parkington.

The non-fiction books are the following: "Napoleon," by Ludwig; "Trader Horn," by Horn and Lewis and Durant's "Story of Philosophy."

SEEK PUBLIC AID IN DESIGNATING LAND MARKS

Aid of village historians and of those settlers in Birmingham who remember the village when it was a mere handful of houses is asked today by members of the Civic League in discovering old land marks and in marking them before they are entirely forgotten.

The location of a few places of historic value are known. The first church in Birmingham, built in 1839 and of Methodist denomination used to stand on the northwest corner of Bates and Merrill streets. In 1872 this building was converted into a library and after 1893 it served as the town hall. It was torn down last year to make room for the new library.

The site of the first public school in Bloomfield Township, built in 1822, is the northwest corner of Barton road and Woodward avenue. This also will be marked.

These sites and others fully as significant historically are marked, according to Mrs. H. E. Whalen of Greenwood avenue, chairman of the committee in charge of the work, when co-operation of Birmingham residents makes the work possible.

Helping Mrs. Whalen, are the following committee members: Mrs. E. Marlotte of Pierce street, Mrs. L. H. Mann of Greenwood avenue, Mrs. Fred Johnson of Adams road, Mrs. V. J. Snyder of Woodland avenue, Mrs. R. M. Hoofnagle of Ann street, and Mrs. Stanley Peabody of Gilbert Lake.

HOW to Achieve Beauty

By Mme. Helena Rubinstein

The Rejuvenating Egg Mask Treatment

The mask treatment is a real treat to the aging skin. It is a treatment for which women spend all the way from $10 on up to unbelievable sums. Women of the aristocracy, and those prominent in social circles all over the world, revel in it as the most luxurious of all treatments. The most famous mask treatment is given in the combination with a rare blend of eastern oils that are very costly and difficult to procure. A certain Egyptian mask treatment which has been famous with the beauties of the Spanish and French courts, is now being used to a considerable extent in this country.

The mask treatment which I am going to describe to you today is the egg mask. Begin the treatment with the cleansing and stimulating steps. Then mix the yolk of an egg thoroughly and apply it all over your face and neck, except around your eyes. It is especially good to mix it with a little of your muscle-tightening balsam. While the mask is on your face, place a thin strip of absorbent cotton saturated in a heated astringent and stimulating lotion over your eyes. Recline on a bed of lounge and relax while the mask dries. It is best not to use a pillow and hold your chin well up.

After the mask has thoroughly dried, the compress over your eyes should be taken off. Then cut little strips of absorbent cotton about six inches long and three inches wide, and dip them in cold water. Lay them across your neck, down the sides of your face, over your chin, forehead, and across the bridge of your nose, also a little one under your nose, so that your entire face is covered with them, with the exception of your nostrils. Pat the moistened cotton all over. Then begin at the forehead and roll it down over your face. As the cotton is rolled off, it will take all the egg mask with it.

The skin will be left fresh and smooth and lovely looking. Finish by bathing your face and throat with your astringent, skin-toning lotion.

This egg mask treatment should be used at regular intervals to make the place of your regular rejuvenating treatment, or on occasions when you want your skin to look particularly lovely.

Lumber Dealers Plan Convention

Retail lumber dealers, in all parts of Michigan, are looking forward to the Thirty-Ninth annual convention of the Michigan Retail Lumber Dealers' association in Grand Rapids, Feb. 1, 2 and 3. Advance reservations indicate that the convention this year will exceed in numbers any previous gathering, and a program has been arranged of interest to dealers in all parts of the state.

The annual conventions are culminations of local and sectional meetings which are held in different parts of Michigan during the year, and at which Lumber Dealers get together to discuss matters of common interest. Many of the ideas, suggestions and recommendations involved at the local meetings have an interest outside of the immediate group where they are brought out, and are carried to the state conventions where they receive the attention of delegates from widely separated parts of the state.

An array of speakers, most of them of national reputation, will discuss vital matters of lumber merchandising and selling, while the heads of the different departments of the association will make their usual reports.

COMPANY STARTS LECTURE SERIES

Phases Of Home Construction Being Discussed Weekly Meetings In Detroit

The beginning of a series of lectures on home construction in the main auditorium of Miller-Storm company, Inc. at Elmhurst and Linwood avenues, Detroit is announced.

"The object of these lectures are to acquaint the thousands of families who want to build homes of their own with sound sturdy construction methods," says George W. Miller, president. "The average family who purchases a home knows very little about sound construction. They are dependent entirely upon the architect's specifications, and no matter how good these specifications may be, in a great many instances contractors fall short of proper building principles." Further says Mr. Miller, "It is our desire to have these families who will build homes of their own know just what good sound construction this is. Therefore, we are building our new 1928 income bungalow on Waverly avenue between Broad street and Petokey avenues, and holding construction lectures in conjunction with it."

"The first lecture was given by Charles Bowen, secretary of the Common Brick Manufacturers association, who discussed basement construction. Mr. Bowen stressed the care that should be taken in building the basement because upon the proper construction of it rested the entire super structure, and this would only be as strong and sturdy as the basement is itself."

For this coming Sunday, Edward H. Kemp, of the Detroit Lumber company, will speak upon rough construction and lumber.
