NEW BOOKS ARRIVE

A set of Compton's Pictured Encyclopaedias, presented to the Adams High School by the January Class of 1928, has arrived, and is now on the shelves, pending already in the sixth grade section engraving of a suitable plate to be placed with the books. The set has been revised since the war and was purchased with the profits made by the class on the presentation of the semi-annual Freshman play, "Brother Josiah," given Dec. 21.

A set of these encyclopaedias is of the library. The new edition includes two more volumes.

ADAMS SCHOOL HAS OWN PUBLICATION

Is Called "Adams Booster;" John Chandler Editor-in-chief

A "snappy" beginning seems to foretell a happy future this semester for the Adams Booster, official publication of the Adams Junior High School, the first copy of which for this semester was issued Friday.

The new staff, only two members of which were on last year's publication committee, is as follows:

Editor-in-Chief—John Chandler
Associate Editor — Gorton Greene
Business Manager—Edwin Deer
Sport—Harry Wheaton, Louise Mintling
Organizations—Donald Parry
Art—Leonard McClure.

By reson of his ability in that branch of work, McClure has been retained as art editor. Deer was in charge of sports last year, but assumed the business manager's position, created this semester, recently.

Class representatives are: Jack Carnahan, Mary Palmer, Charlotte Ramsay, Betty Roura, and Betty Neal.

Copies of the first issue, were, following the precedent set last semester with the first publication, given to each student in the Junior High and to each teacher in the building.

In the race for subscriptions, during which canvassing is being done by the class representatives, the results are announced by means of a novel idea. Strings are suspended on the wall in the main hall. On these are three colored automobiles, representing the seventh, eighth, and ninth grades. Results are posted daily by moving these automobiles on the strings.

JUNIORS WIN FAST GAME FROM PEERS

Baldwin Quintet Takes Small End Of 13-10 Game Tuesday

Although playing under a cloud of intense traditional rivalry the Adams Junior High squad defeated the Baldwin quintet in a fast, hard and rough game Tuesday. The final score was 13-10.

The game was fast on both sides. Stone of Baldwin and Deer of Adams played well for their respective teams. It was hard in that the speed, even though the game was slowed somewhat by the referee, demanded hard playing. And it was rough, for players on both sides had to be cautioned several times for flagrant roughing. Two rather violent disputes with officials also took place, created through the interest and rivalry between the two schools. Not a player in the game came off the floor without a scratch or bruise, and several received hard knocks in contact with the floor.

Although scheduled to play Berkley J. H. Tuesday, the game with Baldwin supplanted this. The Berkley game, both light and heavy weight, will be played there Monday. Baldwin met Pontiac Eastern yesterday.
