WHAT TO WEAR, AND HOW TO WEAR IT

By MME. LISBETH

Smart outdoor things are not confined to the warm months. Old Man Winter calls out some of the nicest of apparel. And not only is it smart, but it is warm and comfortable besides.

The "collegiate" raccoon coat is pictured (left). It is a Parisian model of silver "wool," intended for wear at St. Martin, the Swiss winter resort.

The modern ensemble embraces more and more. The latest traveling includes a warm rug in the costume's colors. One such rug is included in the complete outfit, the suit of which is pictured (center).

It is a LeLong model featuring a navy blue woolen skirt and jacket with beige sweater striped red and blue. The rug matches the sweater.

For mountain climbing Nathalie Dayoff recommends the costume of orange and red checked skirt and jacket of gray velvety material (right). The gray woolen cap repeats the big pattern if it borders, and heavy wooden socks and mittens are worn with stout, thick-soled shoes.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS

MENU HINT
Hot breads are a treat, whether served at breakfast, lunch, dinner or tea. You can take the ordinary biscuit dough recipe and do a surprising number of things with it. For instance, a little grated cheese added when mixing the dough, will give a different flavor. The same is true of grated orange peel, chopped dates, prunes, raisins, etc.

Biscuit Dough—Two cups flour, four teaspoons baking powder, one-half teaspoon salt, two tablespoons melted fat, a little sugar, one teaspoon if liked, milk to make a soft dough. If you wish to make orange biscuits, add a tablespoon of orange juice and press it into the top of each biscuit. Bake as usual!

Scones—Two cups flour, four teaspoons powder, one teaspoon salt, one cup milk. Mix ingredients. Put the dough on a floured board and pat it until it is three-quarters of an inch thick. Cut in circles. Bake on a griddle placed on top of the stove. The griddle is floured and not greased. There are many variations of this recipe. You might add two tablespoons of butter, two tablespoons shortening, or milk might be used in place of water. Add one-fourth cup each of butter and sugar, half cup raisins and then add two egg yolks, decreasing the amount of milk to three-fourths cup. Serve with plenty of butter.

Potato Tea Cakes—One cup cold potato four eggs (float), one-half cup shortening, one teaspoon salt, one cup milk. Mix four and sugar. Bake in a shortening. Add milk. Will He Work in Public?
There is a desire to work for humanity and the general welfare of the public indicated in most writing that the interested searcher for is the sign of a man of initiative—the actual will to go through the plan to benefit mankind. Here are some of the keys:

1—First we will look at the capital M. If the latter part of this letter is higher than the other parts and if, at the same time, the upper loop of the letter f is larger than the lower, then we may be sure that the subconscious urge of that writer is to teach others or help many. Now, if the first part of the M is low and not in proportion to the other parts, we will find a writer lacking in self-esteem. He will not drive himself to get because he does not make a lesson from his failures. He glosses over the error with excuses and makes no further progress by his own efforts.

2—Bars will be to the left of the upright and low on the right in the writing of one who does not feel the urge to make useful life. It will be high toward the heaven in the one who is here to help others. Bars will be to the right of the upright and the terminals will reach out toward the other fellow. The bars will be to the right and will indicate the humanitarian.

Note—Do not make final judgment until other signs are studied.

HOW to Achieve Beauty

By Mme. Helena Rubinstein

The Problem of the Complex Skin
The complex or "mixed" skin is one of the most baffling to recognize and often the most, are too dry, and often the most, are too oily, and most certainly it cannot be classed as normal.

The most common example of the complex skin is that which has an oily streak right down the middle of the face, taking in the nose and mouth region and chin. The cheeks and temples, on the other hand, and often the neck, are too dry. Perhaps you will have a shiny nose and at the same time the little wrinkles beside your eyes that are such tell-tale marks.

Your problem, if you possess a complex skin, is to bring it to a normal. In order to do this you will have to employ the principles of both the dry and oily skin treatment. You must nourish the organ around your eyes at the sides of your ears, your cheeks, your neck, your nose, and your forehead. Using only cleansing cream and a mild anti-wrinkle lotion, not a cream, is the best way to do this. Sections they should not be washed too frequently nor with harsh soap.

Your nose and chin and the area around your mouth, the contrary will need washing with a good soap that will strip down into the pores and get out the accumulations of oil and impurities which have almost invariably formed, with the unlovely outward aspects of blackheads or pimples. There is no need of a lotion that will definitely penetrate beneath the skin and act upon the oil ducts themselves, causing them to function normally. Such a liquid can be obtained to be used as a finishing lotion, immediately removing the shine from your nose and chin, and leaving an attractive surface for make-up.

As for the cream used on the oily sections, the best, of course, is the oily skin cream, but looking to the pasteurized classification, but as long as an oil-reducing wash and lotion are used, your ordinary cleansing cream will be sufficient. Be sure, however, that you remove every trace of it from your nose and chin before retiring. It is best to always follow its use with a hyaline lotion.

The combination treatment I have outlined will soon bring a complex skin to normal, after which a regular normal skin treatment can be used. You will always know just what changes and what substitutions to make, in case you have any doubts, by the evidence of the old condition recurring.

In my next column I am going to take up another of the baffling kinds of skin, and the subject will be, "The Temperamental Skin."

New Fruit Salad
Dispel heartaches of fatigue on a serving dish, and a group of peeled and sliced bananas, sections of orange, freed of all membranes, and a few slices of grapefruit, cut into small triangular pieces.

For about a pint of prepared fruit, stir one-third cupful of olive oil and grape juice and one-half teaspoonful of salt until well blended. Pour over the fruit. Garnish with cherries.

The use of electricity in the home (it does many a household task) is often hampered through lack of suitable means for bringing the current to the spot where the work is to be done—dangling cords from a lamp socket are awkward, inconvenient, and may be dangerous.

It costs little to install a few outlets for the convenient use of your house current—for portable lamps, for table appliances, for kitchen and laundry equipment. They add greatly to the ease and convenience of home-keeping.

You should speak to an electrical contractor about this. Or, let us advise you in the matter (we don't do the work ourselves).

Waste any of the part underneath but get it all off. Cut and peel off this white part in four sections. Drop them into considerable saucer, let it come to a boil and boil for 20 minutes. Drain out and do this for a second and third time.

After the third cooking, cut the quarters into strips of some width, make a syrup of the juice of the fruit and two cups of sugar to the juice of one large grapefruit. Stir and cook this sugar and piece to a nice syrup and gently heat it will not become lumpy from first to last. When it is a syrupy stage, drop in the strips of grapefruit and cook them until they are somewhat transparent.

Take up and drain from the syrup and with two forks pick each piece in sugar and put on a plate to dry. This is often excellent at the point but will be better if it is allowed to stand for a day or two. After that it can be packed in sugar or merely wrapped in paper and shut up in a closed container in which it will keep well for some time.
