BOARD TO ACT ON PROPOSED SEPARATIONS

Rogers Submits Plans For Grand Trunk Grades To Commission
WOODWARD AFFECTED
Action is expected to be taken by the Birmingham Board of Public Works Monday night on the proposal of Frank F. Rogers, state highway commissioner, to separate the Grand Trunk right of way. Two of the eighteen proposed separations will be in Birmingham. The others are in the city of Royal Oak and in Bloomfield Township. Work is already under way here on the construction of a new bed for the railroad approximately three quarters of a mile east of the present site.

Sees Wider Woodward
The letter to the commission from Mr. Rogers states that "that a definite proposal of this nature will remove practically the only remaining objection which tends to delay the rapid completion of the major project of widening Woodward avenue to a 204-foot wide street. It will also still until service can be installed over the new railroad location and the present tracks be taken up."

Types Described
Three additional separations are proposed for Royal Oak: Northwood boulevard, Catalpa drive and Oakland avenue. Separations in Bloomfield Township would include B. one C, one D and one E type. One separation is outside the township of B. All the separations would provide at least 14 feet clearance for vehicles, according to the proposal.

Riders Off For Toledo
Many Hills Folk To Attend Annual Show
Hills people today are motoring to Toledo to attend the horse show scheduled for Friday and Saturday. The show will be held at the high school grounds in Toledo, Ohio, and much interest is shown by the many entrants from this vicinity.

The men, I am told, in the fighter's corner, are supposed to be their best friends. But when I saw the one young gorilla was treated when he sought rest in his corner at the end of the first round, he was not mixed in his directions and found the other fellow's camp stood in for a great deal better.

It's a shame that those people die their friends. Fighting water all over them with no regard for the climatic conditions. They push their heads up and then it seems the only thing they stop at is actually using a club. Taking it to the opponent and then they get more punishment when he is resting in his corner than when he is fighting. It is a shame that those people die their friends. thinks prize fights a lot of fun, but he thinks it is a lot of pug.

By DOROTHY E. WILLIAMS
All this talk about the brutality of prize fights seems to me to be no more than a new stand. The conclusion is reached after seeing the "exhibition of the many art acts" which were held Friday night in Royal Oak. About the only person who was not in the crowd was the doctor of ice cream and that was because it was ONE cold night in the new stand.

A Big Help
A little encouragement was given to one of the fighters because I have seen football games and late afternoon games trying to get on street cars. By comparison, this past-time Friday night was gentle. As you know, the fight was a close one, his fight was the least sign of tiring, his fight was called off and a couple of more minutes who would not look as had in tiger skins but who, in silk tights, were silly were fought by the people who fight the street car mobs don't have any referee to help them when they fight.

After many minutes of watching, I became more interested in the crowd. If you think the people at a vaudeville show during an act are being noisy, you should see the patrons at a prize fight. One woman at the ringside would not leave her seat every time the fighters would get near her side of the ring. Each of her friends was being accompanied by a short, muffled scream and followed by an apologetic sort of "I'm sorry, that passed as a laugh."
