How to Achieve Beauty

By Mme. Helena Rubinstein

After the fundamentals of skin care have been firmly imprinted in the young girl's mind, the wise mother will plan to carry the improvement campaign further. Her next point of consideration will be hair. Beautiful hair must first be healthy hair, and healthy hair depends upon care and cleanliness. In selecting your daughter's hair brush, consider length and texture of her hair. There are all sizes and kinds of brushes, and all of them are good, but certain lengths are best for long hair, and others, most practical for the bob. A stiff brush will stimulate scalp health, but some heads are so sensitive that only a comparatively soft brush is necessary—and comfortable. You may, however, accept this as a standard rule: the nightly brushing must never be omitted if you aim for soft, lustrous hair.

If the hair denotes excessive oiliness, select such a brush as is especially designed to relieve that condition. If the scalp is very dry a tonic and shampoo made of dry hair will contain the necessary lubrication to restore the hair to healthy, normal beauty.

Once a month the careful mother will insure perfect hair health by a hot oil shampoo, balsam oil, being used by you most effective. This encourages sturdy, luxuriant growth.

If you begin when the first down appears on the baby's head to gently brush the opposite way, you will find that you coax the baby's hair to curl around your finger. After that, very little care will result in soft, "natural" curls, if it has any tendency at all toward curling.

When the original growth becomes strong enough to merit actual care, and this will be not later than the end of the first year, shampoo baby's hair once a week, as carefully and as thoroughly as you do your own. Don't let it grow into awkward, uneven lengths before the barber is consulted. Personally I do not approve of ever using a drying machine on a child's hair. It should be rubbed dry, and exposed to the direct sunlight, so that the vitalizing rays can stimulate the scalp's health.

"How old are you?" inquired the visitor of his host's little son. "That is a difficult question," answered the young man, removing his spectacles and wiping them reflectively. "The latest personal survey available shows my psychological age to be 12, my moral age 4, my anatomical age 7, and my physiological age 6. I suppose, however, that you refer to my chronological age, which is 8. That is so out-fashioned that I seldom think of it any more."—Penn Mutual News Letter.

Lady: "Have you given the gold fish fresh water, Jane?"
Jane: "No, mum, they ain't finished the water I gave them yesterday, yet—Top."
If the folks who design women's fashions aren't careful they'll work themselves out of a job one of these days.—Top.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS

We have been accused of being broad in our advice to the housewives. In view of which we hesitate to mention rhubarb at this early date. But one gets so tired of canned fruit, dried fruit, apple sauce and baked apples, that it is a great temptation to buy some of the lovely pink stalks that have been appearing in the markets. And it really is not so expensive, for there is little waste beyond the tops and ends, as we don't have to feed this tender rhubarb. We'll have a pig or dish of sauce just for a treat.

Rhubarb Pie

Today's Recipes
Carrot and Apple Salad—Two-thirds dried apple to one-third of finely cut or grated carrot, with a wee bit of onion. Serve on lettuce or finely chopped cabbage with mayonnaise.

Rhubarb Pie—Into a good pie crust pile new rhubarb cut into inch lengths. Fill crust full, pour over it half a cup or more of sugar and dot with bits of butter. Cover with top crust and put into hot oven. Lower heat after the first ten or fifteen minutes.

Cinnamon in Shaker
Cinnamon toast may be prepared in one-half the usual time, if first you mix your cinnamon and granulated sugar and then put the mixture in a salt shaker. When a housewife fastens a small hand towel to her apron string by means of the loop that forms the hanger whenever she is doing kitchen work, when she dries her hands on this towel instead of her apron and leaves the kitchen with a neat appearance.

BROWN VELVET PUMPS
Many well-dressed women are wearing brown suede pumps or strapped shoes this season. They are worn with neutral beige stockings and it is also considered very smart to carry a brown suede envelope bag with them.

That very necessary and useful article, the telephone, is conveniently taken care of by a little painted table that has three large compartments underneath for the directories.

ROLLADE
(Mrs. Mary Morton's daily Tested Recipe)
Cut thin round steak into pieces the size of your hand, avoiding fat and connective tissue. Roll each with a slice of bacon and tie tightly. Flour and brown quickly in drippings. Add an onion if liked. Simmer very slowly for two or three hours. Do not add water. Three-fourths hour before serving you may add diced potato, carrots and turnips. There will be enough gravy to thin down with a little water. Cook in cast iron or Dutch oven (cast iron casserole).

BLACK HOSE
Returning to Conventional Black, hosiery styles favor plain chiffon hose quite as much as they approve those with fancy lace inserts or novelty clockings. With black ultra-smart black afternoon frock, black hose are again coming into their own.

One housewife fastens a small hand towel to her apron string by means of the loop that forms the hanger whenever she is doing kitchen work, when she dries her hands on this towel instead of her apron and leaves the kitchen with a neat appearance.

Black and white is effectively used in this sports ensemble for spring wear. The coat is white flannel with shawl collar of black monkey fur. Black and white Deauville sandals and white felt hat are worn with this coat by Dorothy Sebastian.

WE HEARD IT SAID BY—
Rev. D. L. Woodward, pastor Birmingham First Baptist Church: "As the result of our Birmingham Ministers' Association letter to Senators Couzens and Ferris, and to Congressman Grant M. Hudson, relative to our opposition to the big Navy program which has been sponsored by the Navy Department, I have received some gratifying letters. Senator Couzens wrote that he favors adequate national protection, but disapproves any excessive defense program. Senator Ferris stated that he would stand for only a moderate program, while Congressman Hudson wrote that he is heartily in accord with our resolution for a minimum program of Navy shipbuilding, compatible with proper protection for our country."
