Commission Makes Ruling On Share Of Expenses For Street Improvements

Precedents for the village to allow in the matter of sharing the cost of the public improvements were established by the commission at the meeting Thursday night when they decided on four matters.

On pavement assessments the village in the future will assume 60 more than the minimum set by the charter which is 16 2-3 per cent of the total cost.

The village will pay all excess cost on trunk line sewers above 24 inches and on sanitary sewers above eight inches.

The village also will assume all excess cost on the construction of watermain above six inches.

HOW to Achieve Beauty

By Mme. Helena Rubinstein

Menus That Promote Beauty

Right eating is so important to a clear skin that I am going to offer you, today, a few concrete suggestions on menus that promote good looks. There are, of course, certain general rules—certain foods which you may be absolutely sure of—and you may add them to any menu at any time such foods as green and leafy vegetables, especially the raw variety, which not only are valuable for high vitamin and mineral content, but which add the bulk so necessary to digestion. Fruits, with the exception of grapes and bananas for the overweight, and fruit juices.

A good general breakfast menu to be selected and varied at your discretion is as follows:

Fresh fruit or fruit juice, stewed prunes, rhubarb, apricots or apricots and raisins. (An excellent combination.)

A cereal—preferably a hot cooked cereal in winter and fall, or a dry wheat cereal with milk if you're much underweight, although cream is much more difficult to digest.

Boiled or poached eggs—French toast, bacon, an omelet—whole wheat or rye toast, and milk. Coffee, if you must—please make it weak, though—or tea.

For luncheon I suggest the following:

A soup—oyster, clam chowder, a cream soup, vegetable puree, tomato or bouillon.

A salad—cabbage, lettuce, stuffed celery, cream cheese and pineapple, etc.

Whole wheat muffins and honey, and a simple dessert—preferably fruit.

For dinner there are these:

Meat—although three times a week is more than often enough to serve meat on your table.

Two cooked vegetables—one may be creamed or one may be a

I HAVE SAID IN MY HEART

By IDAH MCGLONE GIBSON
Poverty Is Not The Worst Thing
I see by the newspapers that Eugene O'Neill's marriage is on the rocks.

This saddens me for all through the early struggles of the playwright when he and his young wife were living in the little colony of poverty stricken writers and artists at Provincetown where they was, at times a pathetic lack of even material food in the house, these two brilliant people contrived to live in an atmosphere of golden dreams for they were very happy.

Now that the dreams have come true and there is no more need of hard work and sacrifice, they are drifting apart.

The class observer has found that this condition so often obtains among young people who marry early in life. They work and starve together uncomplainingly, a mutual spiritual exaltation that the spurs of love flaming, but when they have reached the summit of their desires, they seem to have time to let petty annoyances creep in.

In no other place that I have lived is this so apparent as in the moving picture industry, principally because in no other place have I known so many people who over night awakened to find themselves rich beyond their wildest dreams.

To be one day so poor that one does not know where the next day's food is to come from and the next the star of a big production with a salary of one thousand dollars a week or over is likely to disturb the mental equilibrium of any man or woman.

I have seen the breaking up of a score of marriages among my friends that have occurred from this cause alone.

The husband is apt to think that the great success is his alone. He does not remember that the wife, by her self-sacrifice and encouragement, made it possible for him to go on.

Now that their mutual objective is reached, they find that they

STREET HEARING DATE IS NAMED

Commission Proposed Placing Gravel On Chestnut Street; Owners Called

Objections to the method of taxation for the grading and graveling of Chestnut street from Elm to Adams avenue will be heard by the village commission at the meeting April 2, it was decided Thursday night when Manager James W. Parry presented his estimates of $1158 for the improvement.

The village is to pay the usual one-sixth of the cost and the benefited property owners the remaining five-sixths.

WE HEARD IT SAID BY—

fares but perhaps it is Fate's way of evening things up.

When they are poor husband and wife seem to have a mutual thing to work for which is a great cement to friendship if not to love.

When they no longer need each other to help along the hard road they are both surprised to find that what they thought was a complete understanding of each other was only a determination to make their more or less individual ambitions facts.

Memo: It is not poverty but riches that is the real test of character.
