

The Old Order Changeth . . .

A New Birmingham rises from the foundations of the old pioneer agrarian settlement :: :: :: ::

to a Village of Homes where children thrive

and today the future of Birmingham assumes Utopian resemblances which invite people from far and wide to come here and live and enjoy life with a maximum degree of hapthe village new ground is being turned and upon this ground are being dedicated new ambitions for wholesome and blissful living for one's self and family.

We are confident of Birmingham's future —our repeated investments in this community bear witness to that.
