Sports - Done Brown

By NORMAN E. BROWN

Baseball season brings along the usual number of statistical "bombs." And the daily appearance of these, that of those figures in connection with the various players, clubs, etc., brings to mind a demagogic man in a suit in Laurel, Miss., during my wanderings. He is J. C. Manville. He was knee deep in basketball then, having finished a season as prime mover in the annual city league championship tourney by reason of being secretary of the "Y" there. His eagerness to seek the truth in figures isn't confined to basketball but his researches in that sport indicates in a mild way how deeply he goes into the matter.

Here are just a few things he had recorded regarding the personnel of the basketball league: The average age of the men participating was 22 years, but they ranged from 15 to 32. Two 15-year-old boys being allowed to fill out one of the weaker teams.

Of the 67 men in the league 21 were married and 46 single. The 67 included: 12 farmers, one undertaker, 13 students, six salesmen, seven teachers, seven clerks, three truck drivers.

She has been in the passport division since 1917. She has been in the passport division since 1917.

Former Actor Cares Little For Business

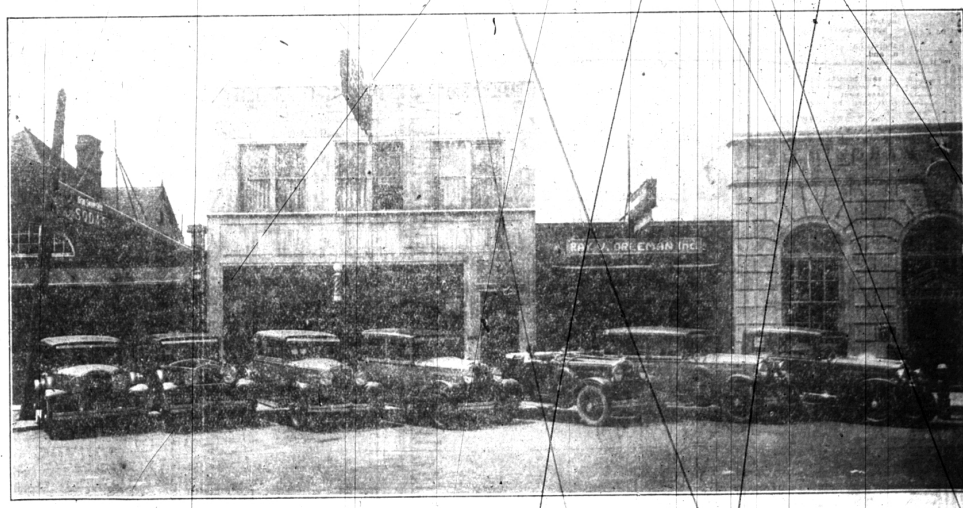

Ellsworth Plomstead, of east Maple avenue, for 30 years connected with Chattanooga work, this summer will not be among those under the brown tape, but will remain in Birmingham.

Mr. Plomstead in telling of one of his attempts at business said: "I tried to make" a bookkeeper and cashier of myself when I closed my season last fall, but I was not much better off than I was with figures, receipts, bills, answering telephones, tending furnace and what have you—I decided that such a job was right when he said that you can't make a silk purse out of a sow's ear." So Plomstead prepared
