The actual mission

The world, today, is nearer the outlawry of war than ever before in its historical annals. And back of this desire for permanent peace is the conscious neis within human intelligence that life is worth it was citizens.

Smith, undisputably personally honest, courageous to the best of his convictions—even though they carried him to a pronounced defeat—Smith, the "happy warrior" of Tammany spoils system, has learned his first lesson in national politics. Though we welcome his defeat on the basis of national and international welfare, we must join the throng that admires his crusading spirit; however, and we are sorry that much of it was directed into erroneous channels.

Protecting Judicial Intelligence Publication of an editorial in this newspaper two weeks ago, in which we argued for the appointment of all judges for life, pending good behavior, has edited much favorable comment. A problem of such greatness as removing our judiciary rom poli vice ought to elicit comment, for comment proves that the question is in the minds of many beople.
An america, conqueror of the world when it comes attainment along scientific or physical lines, has been too busy digging into the earth for wealth; too busy digging into laboratory research, among the
sus moral capacities. So that today, in this country, we are finding that it is extremely necessary to formulate ways and means of protecting our life and our property through better police and judicial systems.

Ten Percent Return

IT IS AN interesting fact that many of the substantial investors are buying more and more income and business property in Birmingham

In the past sixty days we have purchased for prominently known Detroit investors several prominently known Detroit investors several pieces of Pontiac business property, showing a net return of better than ten percent. In Birmingham other successful interests bought through us some of the choicest business prop-

The growth of both Pontiac and Birmingham assures these investors, not only a handsome income, but constantly increasing realty values.

We have a few exceptional offerings of the same character of income property on today.
