BROADWAY SHOW TWICE RAIDED

Despite an injunction obtained after a police raid on the opening night of Mae West's new show, "Pleasure Man," at New York City, preventing further interference by authorities, the play has been raided again, this time during the performance, the actors being hurried from the theater in their stage garb by the police. Mas West, shown above, while the author of the play, is acting in another production, "Plaimond Lil." a Police declare that the raids are the beginning of a drive to clean up Broadway.

"I don't want you to think I'm a gold digger. A nice little $500 ring will do for me."

He: "If I get it for you, a nice little five-cent ring for the police will do for me."

Mahaffy says: "A dirty look, like a lead nickel, has very little face value. The best way to get along with people is to do them an obliging service, and act pleased with the job.'
