WORK TO START MONDAY ON NEW RIDING RING

Contract for the above indoor riding ring to be constructed at the Bloomfield Open Hunt club at a cost of approximately $70,000 is today awarded to Sheldon Construction company, of Detroit, state officials announce. O'Dell & Diehl, of Detroit, are the architects. Work will start Monday on the ring which is to be ready for use by Christmas.
It is of early American architecture and features a huge indoor riding ring 80x200 feet, a spectators' gallery at one end of the ring will accommodate 400 persons and at the other end of the ring will be a large tea room which will be connected by a passage way with the kitchen of the present clubhouse. The ring itself will be connected with the stables by another passage way, the plan being to make a complete operating unit of the old and new buildings.
A men's lounge and locker room is to be constructed by the second floor, above the tea room, and a similar room for the women is being fitted up in the old clubhouse. The building will be fireproof with masonry walls and a metal roof. The grounds are to be laid out with a circular drive in the court just west of the new structure. The driveway will pass the entrance of the stable and clubhouse and the tea room, cutting off the old entrance from Long Lake road.

DRIVER GROWS TIRED "DRIVING ONWARD"

"Drive on," Lloyd Nanerrow, Detroit taxi cab driver was told, Monday night, as he drove on. However, it was too much of a good thing he thought, and to cap the event his passenger tried to beat him out of a $6.20 taxi fare, the driver told Justice Floyd S. Buck, Tuesday.
He said he picked up P. L. Drunken, 197 West Lannah avenue in Detroit and was told to drive to Birmingham. Arriving he was told to drive to Pontiac, and thence to Flint. After driving to Pontiac he refused to go farther and returned, but said the man whom he believed to be under the influence of liquor, would not pay his bill.
Drunken pleaded guilty to a disorderly charge, paid the bill and $5 costs to the justice.

Thomas Parker, attorney: "To maintain the beauty of Birmingham for all time the people of the village must get together and support a zoning ordinance."

SOCIETY

ARCHITECTURE IS CLUB TOPIC

Detroit Authority Addresses Women's Literary Club; New Members Accepted
Mrs. Edward L. McCollin, chairman of the art department of the Detroit Federation of Women's clubs, was the speaker at the meeting of the Woman's Literary club held in the Baldwin Library Tuesday.
She spoke on "American Architecture," tracing its development with the history of the country. In telling of the early style, she pointed out the Tudor and Gothic forms as an expression of the freshness of the times. "Brick, stone and crude logs were used to bring out the manly, virile and solidly of this style," Mrs. McCollin said.
She pointed to Charles Bulfinch, she credited the classical influence found in the stately white wood churches of New England in 1760. With the early nineteenth century she associates the name of Henry Richardson with his adoption of the Romanesque style.
Shortly after this period, the architectural firms of McKim, Mead & White and Carr, Goodbye & Ferguson came into prominence, establishing themselves as foremost American architects, the speaker stated.
The three outstanding types of American architecture, Mrs. McCollin stated, "are the Colonial meetinghouse, the missions of California, and the skyscraper, and the zeppelin and airplane are fast making the latter impractical."
Following Mrs. McCollin's talk, Mrs. Rheta Barr, of the applied arts committee reported on the department day of the city federation, giving a resume of Miss Edith Roberts' lecture on music.
Mrs. Lila Peck and Mrs. Nellie Hatch were elected to membership in the club.
The girls chorus of the high school under the leadership of Miss Mae Brumsted sang and members of the art department served tea.
The world's work committee will be in charge of the next meeting, Oct. 30, according to an announcement.

The linen, dairy and petting plant booths were features of the afternoon with the usual sale of bibs and novelty booths. The house and booths were decorated with winter berries.
During the afternoon tea was served with Mrs. M. L. Baker and Mrs. E. W. Boynton in charge of the refreshments, Mrs. Lane Bishop and Mrs. Milton Coulson, who were in charge of the sale, completed the general committee.

WOMEN REPORT ON BOOK SALE

Proceeds amounting to $225 were netted at the used-book sale conducted here by the American Association of University Women, according to the report of Mrs. Leigh Lynch, chairman of the committee.
The yearly budget will be covered by this sum, which surpassed the goal set by the club.
In speaking of the sale, Mrs. Lynch said children's story books were the best sellers, a new fiction second. "I believe that the many needs for books of various kinds, from fiction to technical volumes were supplied by this sale," she stated.
