VILLAGE WOMEN HEAR NEIBURH'S PEACE PLEA AT FAREWELL DINNER

Signing of the Kellogg treaty to abolish war is the theme of the evening. The work of the International Women's League for Peace and Freedom is not completed. They must continue to be on their guard against war and its proponents.

This was the gist of the talk given by the Rev. Reinhold Neiburh, well known Detroit pastor, to the League at a farewell dinner given for him Monday at the Twentieth Century Club in Detroit. The dinner was attended by many women from Birmingham and Bloomfield Hills. Mrs. George T. Hendrie, of the Hills, was hostess of the evening.

Dr. Neiburh leaves to take a professorship in New York University.

Abolition of war is the greatest problem the world could face," Rev. Neiburh said. "Now that we have taken this step toward outlawing war by the signing of the Kellogg Treaty we must not forget that we still lurk enemies of peace."

He sees two enemies of peace the optimist and the pessimist and realists who feel the future of everything and to whom each step is a moral innovation.

It was three years after the war before the effects of the melodramatic and substantial world realized that there were no heroes and villains, he pointed out.

There was a certain drama to the League of Nations. There are still those who feel that the great tragedy of Woodrow Wilson's sacrifice of a great peace to a new adventure was giving up the realities of European history for a dream.

"Woodrow Wilson was a son of romance who trusted in words possibly too much," Rev. Neiburh continued.

The League automatically abolished war, he said. "It was a league of victors and America felt herself too pure to get into it."

"Let's outlaw war, not enforce war," some said. "There was the danger of the League becoming a new kind of Central European alliance. Now we are signing of the Kellogg Treaty there are those who are celebrating the beginning of the millennium and who are the worst enemies, the romanticists or the defeatists?"

This Kellogg Treaty does not outlaw defensive war, he pointed out, merely aggressive wars. "But there are the definitions of defensive and aggressive wars. However it is impossible to have an agreement outlawing defensive war."

"Kellogg has provided for the complete delegatization of war. But I believe that the judiciary board which would settle any dispute such as might arise from aggressive or defensive wars is necessary. Without this treaty is hopeless," Rev. Neiburh said.

He spoke of the attitude of the countries in accepting the Kellogg Treaty. "England accepted it as a treaty of a rich but not too intelligent union," he said. "It means America's friendship."

How It Was Accepted

England believes that she has gained the friendship and co-operation of an indifferent neighbor. "Mr. Anatole Briand accepted it hoping that it might satisfy the present treaty of France. Mr. Briand is a diplomat. France accepted it believing that it was in the framework of their present treaty," he said.

He pointed out the dangers of ambiguity. "There are the age old difficulties of international relations. There is the fact of the Monroe Doctrine and the troops stationed in Nicaragua at the time of the presentation of the treaty and, then too, there is the opinion current in Europe that America is unable to see realistically international affairs because of her geographical isolation."

Rev. Neiburh believes that this is not an idle gesture but that there is a psychological value in this commitment. "It is a sacrament of mutual trust," he said, "and to fill the sacrament with meaning is the part of the pacifist."

He spoke of the anti-American voices in Europe, the murmurings because it was America who presented the League and then rejected it through her Senate. "There is danger that other countries will shift responsibility, on such grounds," he said.

As for the League of Nations, "The problem of the peace of the world does rest in America," Rev. Neiburh concluded. "She has the power, therefore she holds the destiny of the world. We must shut the Scylla of optimism and the Charybdis of pessimism and as pacifists we must try to find the Kellogg Treaty."

Motions were made by Miss Margaret Whittemore that the League send a note of appreciation to Secretary Kellogg and that delegates of the Detroit League call upon Senator Arthur Vandenberg and Senator James C. Owens asking that they ratify the treaty.

Dr. Lynn Harold Hough, former Detroit pastor, who was associated in many kinds of work with Dr. Neiburh was present at the dinner, returning from Montreal for the occasion. He was introduced by Mrs. Hendrie.

PLAN DEBUT IN THE HILLS

Romayne Thompson To Make Bow At "Kennway"

Miss Romayne Thompson will make her bow to society Saturday at a delightful tea in the woods at "Kennway," the estate of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. William D. Thompson.

The keynote of the affair is to be simplicity. Miss Thompson choosing for her gown a moire cut in simple straight lines. It will be of a warm brown shade carrying out the autumn colors, which make "Kennways" so lovely at this season.

Mrs. Thompson, who will be in the receiving line with her daughter, will wear black velvet also of a simple cut.

Miss Thompson is a graduate of Dana Hall and Fine Manor, both in Wellesley, Mass. She lived last year abroad, returning with her parents in July. While in Europe she spent most of her time in Paris studying languages. She plans to continue her work along this line in Detroit during the winter.
