Turban Comes To Fore With Tailored Frock

By LUCY CLAIRE
Fashion Expert for Central Press and The Eccentric

"Quite the oldest newest thing in millinery for fall is the turban. The strong trend of the moment in street costumes is their tailored outline. The cloth tailored frock, especially in the coat type, is staging a strong comeback. There is no type of millinery looks better with the tailored frock or suit or coat than the turban. Therefore, at the moment, it is swaying the millinery trade. Tailored lines is only another way of saying 'smooth lines.' No matter how intricately worked the design may be, the finished effect must be smooth and perfectly fitted. So the first essential of the turban is to fit the head smoothly. In this respect the new turbans are the last edition of the skull cap type of hat worn a year ago.

The feather turban, which made its debut last year, is now looked upon with much more favor. It has become one of the most important items in millinery. But it is not exactly the feather turban we have been familiar with. Like the new skirt silhouettes, there is something about it that marks it as this season's vintage. There is a greater ingenuity in the placement of the feathers, as well as in color combination, and greater scope in the choice of the feathers themselves. An example of this ingenuity is shown in the manipulation of the feathers in the black turban shown in the center of the sketch. You will note that there are two little shellacked wings that come down the sides over the ears. Hatter's does not apply to materials so much as to color, though it is very smart indeed to incorporate a bit of the ensemble material in hat, bag and shoes, especially where the ensemble is of tweed. However, as most of us do not have a plethora of coats, and as our shoes are usually of kid, it is wise to have the bag of leather, and the shoes of the kid as near as possible to the color of the coat.

Turbans: Not Always Becoming a turban. The close fitting crown, without even apology for brim, is anything but flattering to some types of faces. So we still have with us the small hat with medium sized brim, and half, whole or irregular brim, or an off-the-face effect with a beret crown. The hat at the upper left has a crown of black hatter's plush, with a half brim and side trim of black feathers. In the lower right hatter's is a rather unique hat of velvet plain unpressed velvet used for the turn back brim facing.

The matching of accessories in the costume, such as hats, handbags and shoes, is of greater importance than ever. Of course this

At the lower left of the sketch is shown a brown leather bag with a strap of lizard for wear with the brown coat and brown shoes, while at the upper right is shown a blue kid bag with silver piping for wear with the blue coat and shoes. The bag at the lower center is of taupe leather with modernistic trim in a darker shade, for wear with the silver fitch coat and the taupe kid shoes. Silver fitch is the taupe shade in cloth, which will be much in vogue for the coming season. It is much on the shade of mode beige, lighter in tone than mocha beige and darker than natural.

Cake doesn't have to be served as cake, if you prefer to call it pudding and serve it with sauce. That is what I have done in the menu today.

Meat Loaf—Mix one pound each of lean beef and veal, ground, one cup of bread crumbs, one chopped green pepper, two eggs, one cup of milk, one teaspoonful of salt and pepper and paprika, to taste. Line a baking pan with strips of bacon. Fill with the meat mixture. Lay strips of bacon over the top. Bake in a moderate oven forty-five minutes. Turn upside down on a large platter and garnish with parsley.

Spiced Cakes—One cup brown sugar, one tablespoon butter or lard, one egg, one teaspoon cinnamon, half a teaspoon each of salt, allspice, nutmeg and cloves, one cup sweet or sour milk, two teaspoons baking powder if sweet milk is used, (one-half teaspoon soda and one teaspoon baking powder if you use sour). Two cups flour. Bake in gem pans or shallow pan.

Chocolate Sauce—One cup sugar, two tablespoons cocoa or two squares chocolate, one tablespoon flour, cornstarch, pinch salt, one cup boiling water, one teaspoon butter or one teaspoon vanilla. Cook until thick.

Health Rules
"A few fundamental rules should be borne in mind by every person preparing food," says Dr. Hunter, bacteriologist of the United States department of agriculture. "Food to be eaten raw should be fresh, clean, free from abnormal odors, rotting areas and from mold, and should be washed in clean water fit for drinking purpose. Cooked foods should be

HOW to Achieve Beauty

Common Sense and Health Habits
Most of us know the important health habit which calls for water, and lots of it, both inside and out. Bathing is one of the things that the layman may well believe requires no more than the most casual consideration. Nevertheless, there is more to it than you think. In the first place, let us take up the question of baths—hot baths and cold baths. They are both good, yet both of them at the wrong time or with other circumstances against them, can be very bad. The hot bath may be soothing, provided the temperature is kept just normally warm and not raised to the scalding point. If you have not acquired this too-hot-bath habit, do not woe at my mentioning it, for I assure you there are many women who think it the acme of luxury to get into a tub, the water hot as they can stand, and then let a continual stream of hot water flow in until the bath becomes actually uncomfortable. This, incidentally, is the most popular form of bathing among the Japanese.

Against it, I must state that it is highly likely to develop insomnia. A hot bath is actually drawn out the tiredness, but instead leaves the body weak with the nerves stimulated and little inclined towards rest. If you wish to indulge in a hot bath at night, be sure that it is only moderately hot.

If you wish to take your hot bath in the morning, and contrary to many opinions it is not at all a bad time for it, do not expose yourself to the likelihood of cold by going out with the pores open from steaming. An alcohol rub is an excellent preventive, will close the pores, refresh and stimulate the skin, and prove generally beneficial to your health.

Now for the cold bath. We have all listened to those cheerful individuals—those who insist upon telling all and sundry how morning showers are so refreshing. I don't like to denigrate these cold plunges and icy showers, for I am quite sure that there are many people who do. Nevertheless, personally, I do not approve of many women taking them, although I realize that the modern generation likes nothing better than to shock both herself and her elders by imperiling her health. The fact is, that there are comparatively few nervous systems in such an excellent state that they can afford to suffer the shock of icy water in the morning.

Compromise by beginning with a warm shower, and very gradually letting it grow cooler and cooler until, at the end, it is as cold as you really wish to make it. Lacking a shower, if you feel the urge for a cold bath, draw the water in the tub at night, close your bathroom door and let it reach the temperature of the room. Needless to say, if you are unfortunate in possessing one of those enclosed refrigerators which pass as bathrooms, don't attempt letting your water stand overnight. You may have to chop it out in the morning!

As a few general facts, which I am sure all of you know, I shall conclude by saying that daintiness demands a daily bath, and cleanliness requires hot water and plenty of soap at least three times a week.

beated to the boiling point, kept free from contamination, and if to be held more than a few hours, subjected to refrigeration."

Simple and dainty is the little georgette evening frock pictured. It is particularly suitable for the co-ed, the printed pattern being roses in natural tones. It has round neck, bound hips and scalloped hem.

ABOUT WOMEN

Charging that her husband has taken her out only once in 30 years of married life, Mrs. Margaret Federline of Washington, D. C., has filed suit for divorce.

Widows in Korea do not remarry, no matter how young they may be. Even though they had been married only a month, they can not remarry.

Catherine Vornaditz is the strongest woman in Russia and probably in the world. She can carry 300 pounds on her back and has a voice that can be heard clearly a mile away.

SALLY'S SALLIES

If you don't know your neighbors to talk to, you can always talk about them.

WE HEARD IT SAID BY—

James W. Cobb, postmaster: "The postal department encounters a great deal of difficulty with persons who write letters without giving an adequate address. Many letters come into the post office with only a name on them, not even stating that it is intended for general delivery. We incur some difficulty in locating the person for whom the letters are intended and often are not able to do so. Many persons who come to Birmingham fail to notify us of their mailing address and they do not receive letters. Blame is placed with us for failure of letters to reach their destination when many times it lies with the person who should receive them. We advise that mailing addresses be made definite and that we are informed of changes in address or of new residents."

Feeling Onions

Pour hot water over onions, allow them to remain for a few minutes, then drain and pour cold water over them. Then the skins can be removed easily.
