Black Smarter Than Ever in Spite of Rivals

By LUCY CLAIRE
Fashion Expert for Central Press

Color is making a tremendous acclaim for the coming season, but in the midst of the browns, blues, grays and greens, as well as the colors for formal wear, one cannot afford to overlook black. The black ensemble, with its black felt hat, and black glaze kid shoes, promises to rank high with the color features. Very smart is the ensemble of black broadcloth trimmed with Persian lamb. Far from being old or conservative looking, this style is best appreciated by the sophisticates. Instinctive color in the blouse usually accompanies these black ensembles. Sometimes the blouse introduces the long absent peacock blue or American beauty red. Where the frock is of the one-piece model, it is combined with a decided color in one of the bright hues.

Black seems to share honors with brown, as exploited by fashionables returning from Paris. A recent cable received by a leading shoe house gives black kid the lead over brown in Paris, at the moment. This means that the black shoe will undoubtedly be a very good number on this side of the Atlantic a little later in the season.

The model sketched at the left of the extreme right shows a coat frock of black crepe combined with yellow chartreuse, a rather unusual combination. The yellow chartreuse is manipulated in insets in skirt and sleeves. Here again the lines are princess. With the slightly fitted waistline. A black felt hat, black satin kid shoes in the T strap model, and sunburn hose accompany the costume.

Sunburn, the real thing—that coat of tan we have been acquiring all summer—is responsible for many of the colors featured for fall. Not least among them is

HOUSEHOLD HINTS

By MRS. MARY MORTON

MENU HINT

Roast Beef Hash: Buttered Carrots, Lettuce and Tomato Salad, Cheese-Cake, Coffee.

Hash is the age old answer to the leftover meat and potato problem, and if well made it is very good. Seasoning has much to do with the taste of hash. Cheese cake is one of those dishes everyone can make, but which is a great favorite with its devotees. The recipe printed is a bit "diverted."

Today's Recipes

Cheese-Cake—Combine one and one-half pounds of pot cheese, one tablespoonful of flour, one tablespoonful of melted butter, three eggs yolks, three-fourths cup of sugar and one-half cup of sweet cream or top milk. Flavor to taste with lemon or vanilla and fold in stiffly-beaten egg whites. Line a plate with pastry made as follows: One cup of flour, one spoonful of salt, scant one-half cup of shortening, cold water to mix. Put the bottom of the crust liberally with pieces of pineapple, pour in filling and bake from 25 to 30 minutes.

Suggestions

Left-Over Mashed Potatoes—To use up left-over mashed potatoes try potato scones. One cup mashed potatoes, pinch salt; one half cup sweet milk, flour enough to make a dough that may be handled. Roll, cut into triangles and fry in a pan or bake in the oven. Butter and serve hot.

Freshen Rug—Frequently a rug looks faded when it is merely soiled. In this case, going over it with a brush dipped in soap suds, followed at once by a running out of warm water will restore its brighter tones.

Sewing Room Hint—Cut the strips containing buttons and buttonholes from discarded garments and use them under a fly in new garments. It saves time and labor.

How To Achieve Beauty

By Mrs. Helena Rubinstein

Various Shampoos

THERE are many kinds of shampoos. For the first, I am going to state that important hair wash, the oil shampoo. I shall go into this very briefly, as I know I have told you about it before.

Begin by brushing the hair briskly, with an upward stroke, for two or three minutes. The balsam, or olive oil, must be warm, but not hot. It is applied with a piece of cotton. Part the hair in inch sections. Massage the scalp a few minutes after the oil has been applied. After the oil has been well massaged into the scalp, wrap up the head in a warm turkish towel. Then, using the rubber spray, run hot water, as hot as can be conveniently borne, on the hair in a steady spray for two or three minutes. This helps to force the oil to penetrate well into the scalp. Follow with the shampoo.

Tar shampoos are very popular in this country, and most of the complaints arising from their use come from a lack of the knowledge that this shampoo is highly inaccurate for any but dark hair. One would think that the very name would scare away the blondes, but it doesn't seem to, and as a consequence, many a pretty blonde has had her hair look much worse for the shampooing with the tar shampoo.

Egg shampoos are not nearly so popular as they should be, but I myself, can testify to the wonderful properties the egg possesses in stimulating the growth of beautiful hair.

The yolk of the egg is all that is used in the shampoo. Separate your eggs. You will need four or six if it is to be a straight egg shampoo. However, I find it quite adequate to use two or three eggs, depending upon the length and thickness of your hair. Break them into the graduated egg. Beat well with a silver fork and then fill up the glass with the regular shampoo. Two ounces of shampoo to four ounces of water. This process is particularly advisable for the home shampoo, as the addition of the shampoo preparation gives a good, satisfactory lather. Use in exactly the same way as you would the ordinary shampoo. Two or three soapsings and a thorough rinsing with warm water.

Henna shampoo is another one which should be very popular with chestnut-haired brunettes. Make a paste of powdered Egyptian henna. Use two tablespoonfuls of henna to sufficient water to make a thin paste. Fill your glass with shampoo, using two ounces of the preparation to four ounces of water, and wash the hair in exactly the same way. If you leave the shampoo on the hair for two or three minutes, the results will be more satisfying.

Know Your Sweetheart by His Handwriting

By EDNA PURDY WALSH, Editor, Character Reading Magazine.

How About His Ardor?

The ardent lover is one who feels that he is worthy to express his affection, and there is a certain nobility in this. It has been said

What Matters

Ardor and Constructive Talent.

You think you are a woman. The lover who makes little weak t-bars low down over the left, and he usually gets "left" also, for premeditation. There is nothing of virtue in the character analyst. I want you to prize him, and that is why I slam myself.

One finds ardor and enthusiasm in t-bars which are crossed high, and more often to the right than the left. Then are long bars—not clipped short. If a girl is so lucky as to receive a letter with high crossed t-bars, connected with the word following as a beginning stroke, she may know she has an enthusiastic sweetheart, as well as one with good constructive and planning ability.

Feminists which curve upward as though reaching out for better things betray ardor, as well as a desire to better life, etc. Note—Do not make real judgments until other signs are studied.
