STUDYING THE CHEAP JAG MACHINE

Technically this apparatus is called the "Orientator" and some one has restricted it to the "Cheap Jag Machine". It does everything that a plane will do, plus many other things that a plane cannot do, and the embryo flyer who can keep his head after taking a few spins in the "Orientator" is ready for his flying instructions. The photograph was made at [L. Langley] Field, Virginia, where West Point Cadets are given instructions in the art of flying. Many of our leading aviators have received training here.
