C. J. SHAIN HEADS HOUSE COMMITTEE

Revised Constitution, By-laws Of Community Group Expected Feb. 4

A new constitution and set of by-laws for the Community House are being studied today by a committee headed by Charles J. Shain. The document will be presented at the annual meeting of the Community House association scheduled for Feb. 4.

The proposed constitution makes provision for 15 directors, the majority to be women, and from the directors an executive committee of seven members to be named. This executive committee would meet weekly and the board of directors would meet monthly.

An expansion committee is being formed and will be brought before the association for their approval at the annual meeting. The work of this committee will be largely in the social service branch, interest for the present being centered in a day nursery and clinical work.

A report of the building committee will be read at the annual meeting. Blue prints will be presented to the board within the month. Mrs. Charles J. Shain, president of the executive board, said.

Reports from the building fund show that $55,000 has been paid already and that $58,000 is still due. Mrs. Shain said. Two of the five payments have passed, with the next one falling due April 15, she said.

Mrs. Joseph P. Little has been named a chairman of a committee on furnishings and equipments. Mrs. Little will collaborate with the Board in naming her assistants.

Annual reports from all committees are to be read and the general audit presented to the association at the annual meeting, which is open to all subscribers to the Community House Fund.

DETROIT FIRE CHIEFS TO AID IN HILLS WORK

Investigation of the fire protection needs in Bloomfield Hills village will be made next week by Detroit Fire Chiefs DeMay and Rumsford following a meeting of the village fire commission at the Detroit Athletic Club, Tuesday noon.

Harold L. Wallace, Chairman Donald James and H. A. O'Dell were present at the meeting. Fire equipment is to be installed in two weeks.

Church Gets New Organ

Installation of the new, large pipe organ in the First Baptist Church is under way today and it is expected to require another five weeks for completion.

There are 21 sets of pipes, ranging from the size of a lead pencil to 32 feet in length. In all there are over 1,850 of these pipes.

From these 21 are taken 34 speaking organs. Besides the 34 sets there is a set of 25 Cathedral chimes and a Harp consisting of 49 bars.

The organs are played and controlled from a three-manual console or keyboard and pedal board. This is located in the chancel at the front of the church and is connected to the Organ by a series of cables.

The organ is the gift of Mrs. Rebecca Hall who has been for years one of the members of the Birmingham Baptist Church. The organ completely installed will cost about $12,000.

During the week of Dedication Services, Mr. Shanley Ross, organist, will give a series of short concerts.

TROY WOMAN SURVIVES OHIO BUS CRASH

Butler is declared who is now in the hospital with severe cuts. He told Dr. C. L. Bell, Huron county coroner, he is assisted by Edward Martin, county prosecutor, in investigating, that he had halted his car in the crossing and looked in both directions for approaching trains, getting out and proceeding on his way when a dark seemed clear, he said.

The speed of the interurban was reported between 35 and 50 miles an hour. The motorman, Fred Schuyler, said that he was sitting for the 50-ton car to pass. Instead it started across. Schuyler sat for a few moments, reversed the motor when he saw the bus on the crossing. He avoided being cut in front in the vestibule, which was stove in, by running into the compartment behind. None of the car passengers were seriously injured.

Returned to Scene Mrs. Service said she was brought to the scene of the accident to get her suitcase after a hospital examination. She collapsed again when she saw interurban passengers and doctors removing the dead. She was again taken to the hospital and released at 6 p. m. She had been in an ambulance, Dr. Theima Leighton for the past two weeks in Akron, O.

Mrs. Service told her apprehensions in completing the journey from Cleveland to Detroit by bus and thence to Birmingham where band, J. L. Service, a laborer, had planned to meet her at 3 p. m. He drew an account of the accident in paper and had feared that she was among the injured.

Hurled 100 Feet Mrs. Service said the bus was struck in the middle, cutting the top from the body and that parts of the engine were hurled for 100 feet. The electric car left its chassis, it is said, and rammed into a ditch about the bus.

Those known to be killed are: Richard Freeman, 1227 East boulevard, Cleveland; Louis Flynn, Pittsburg; Elmer Almond, 41 South Forest Ave., Youngstown, O.; Bela Theisz, 318 Lightner Ave., Detroit. (No such street; name not in directory.)

D. Coulter, 3819 Parkdale Ave., Cleveland; Mrs. Olive Green, 27 Roosevelt; R. Runney, 1146 Roosevelt road, Chicago.

Peter Kinsley, Wakeman, O.; William J. Cook, 50 Cleveland; Harry Glickman, 625 Perry avenue east, Detroit; J. S. Davenport, 3721 Woodland Cleveland;

Mrs. J. H. Harmon, 73 North Forge St., Akron, O.; Toddy Obravski, 251 Nassau St., Brooklyn, N. Y.; Man about 35, initial "M" on belt;

Man about 40, 160 pounds; Man about 30, tall and slender; Man about 25, fair complexion, dark suit; Negro woman about 30.

DEAR MRS. LEE

By Mrs. Virginia Lee

Do Writers Take Advice When They Ask For It, If It Does Not Please?

One of my correspondents wonders how many who write for advice follow it when given. I often wonder the same thing. A man I knew insisted that those who wrote for advice only wanted their own opinion confirmed, and did not take advice that was contrary to their own wishes. That may be. At any rate this column is written in good faith, and if advice is not taken by the one who asks for it, it may help some one who is in a like predicament.

"DEAR MRS. LEE: I am 20 years old and have been keeping steady company with a fellow about four or five years, my senior. I met him through a former suitor of mine whom he says he simply copied for some shoddy reason. He says that is one of the reasons why we cannot marry. I just because I went with this friend before I went with him. Just before Christmas my friend left his position and went home. He has come back five times since. The first couple of times he came back he stayed two or three days, of which he saw me practically all the time. The other visits have been only for a day, but he has seen me as much as possible. He is going to Chicago to work if he finds the kind of work he wants.

"Mrs. Lee, I am very much in love with him, but I have never told him, although he has asked me to. He has told me he cares for me. He also has written me. His letters have been very often, being "massive." I write him ordinary friendly letters. Now, Mrs. Lee, do you really think he cares for me? What do you think I should do?"

"HOPEFUL DIMPLES." I think that is a very silly excuse your friend made for not marrying you, and as "actions speak louder than words," you may disregard what he said. I don't see the necessity for breaking the friendship as long as he seems to think so much of you and you of him. Write him on once nice friendly letters and let things take their own course. When he begins to cool off and seems less interested—if this should come to pass—it is time enough to talk about forgetting him.

"MY DEAR MRS. LEE: Some time ago I wrote you but failed to get my letter. However, I missed one copy and it must have contained your answer, for you spoke of your answer to one who signed her name "Mussie." You please repeat your answer for me? Do you think I could find happiness in divorce when the majority of my friends don't approve, and I know it would bring sadness to my mother and I am not one to wear my troubles on my sleeve, and my many friends do not even suspect how utterly unhappy I am. I am not sure I want to marry my friend, though I find sweet pleasure in his company. I've made such a failure this time I'd almost be afraid to try it again. It seems that so many who fail in their marriage fail in the second also. Please answer soon and tell me what to do. "MARRIED."

I did answer your letter, my dear, and told you to talk the matter over with your husband and see what his reaction would be. He probably does not realize that he has failed as a husband and might make an effort to be more what you wish. I also told you that as you could support yourself and there were no children, there was no reason for you to stay with Nighties are getting shorter, as viewed in spring collections of negligees.

The pleated skirt has invaded the realm of lingerie, appearing on an imported creation of flesh silk crepe.

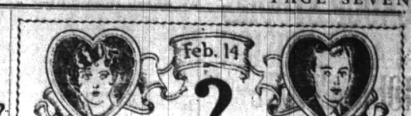

Sleeveless frocks are being more and more accentuated, not only for resort and warm weather wear, but for formal afternoon frocks.

Black chiffon and white lace are combined in a very feminine and sophisticated evening gown with extreme back décolletage.

When a eagle swooped down and seized his 2-year-old brother, Guy Lyons of Lubec, Me., aged 5, grasped the child's legs and pulled him free.
