A Peculiar Swimming Hazard

While it is true that swimming is a healthful exercise, yet under certain conditions it causes hazards other than drowning and which are avoidable.

A group of physicians who have made a study of swimming hygiene have issued the following warning:

"Persons with colds, head infections, running nose or ears and catarrh are warned that swimming and diving tend to force the infection into sinuses or ears and result in serious, if not fatal, complications."

If trouble of any kind develops as a result of swimming, or from any cause, you will do well to go to a physician promptly.

If prescriptions are to be filled remember that you should choose your druggist as carefully as your physician. We are prescription specialists.
