WOMEN DIPLOMATS

By LILLIAN CAMPBELL

From time to time we hear of women passing the state department examinations for foreign service. Sometimes we hear of a woman being given an appointment. Then we hear no more, and we wonder what becomes of these pioneers in a new field of endeavor for the feminine sex.

Five women have been successful in passing the state department examinations for foreign service. The first was Miss Lucille Atcherson of Columbus, O. She began her service in 1922 and served at the American legation at Berne, Switzerland, and Panama. She resigned in 1927 to become Mrs. George M. Curtis of Chicago.

Miss Pattie H. Field of Denver was appointed vice consul at Amsterdam, Holland, in August, 1926. She still holds that post.

In 1927 Miss Frances E. Willis of Redlands, Cal., passed her diplomatic examinations, and, early in 1928, was appointed vice consul at Valparaiso, Chile.

Two other women have passed their examinations and are now awaiting foreign assignments. They are Miss Nelle B. Stogdall of South Bend, Ind., who passed the examinations in 1929, and Miss Margaret Warner of Lincoln, Mass., who passed them the same year.

THE OTHER CHAP SAYS SOMETHING

JUST LIKE A MOTHER

A mother had need one evening to pass between the light and her little son. With sweet, grave courtesy, she said, "Will you excuse me, dear, if I pass between you and the light?"

He looked up and said, "What made you ask me that, mother?"

"Because, dear," she answered, "it would be rude to do without speaking. I would not think of failing to speak if it had been the minister, and surely I would not be more rude to my own son."

The boy thought a moment, and asked, "Mother, what ought I to say back?"

"What do you think would be nice?"

He studied over it awhile, for he was such a wee laddie, and then said, "would it be nice to say—'Surely you can't!'"

"This was mother's time to say, 'That would be nice; but how should you like to say, 'Certainly, Mother?' It means very same thing, you know."

The little fellow, now a man in college, is remarked for his never-failing courtesy. A friend said of him the other day: "It is second nature with him to be polite." The mother smiled as she thanked God in her heart for the grace which helped her to be unfailingly courteous to her boy.—Lapeer County (Mich.) Press.

SLEEVELESS FROCKS

By FRANCES CLYNE

Fashion Writer for Central Press

At one time the appearance of a sleeveless frock at any party other than in the evening would have been considered a glaring breach of the conventions and good taste. But nowadays the sleeveless dress for street, for sports, in fact, for almost every daytime occasion as well as evening, can take its place in good society with perfectly barefaced—or rather bareheaded—frankness. The only time its appropriateness might be questioned at all would be in an office or other business setting.

For this purpose a very cunning as well as wisely practical and modish solution lies in the wearing of a little jacket in matching or contrasting color to the dress. These cleverly devised little garments may be flannel, velvet or silk, as the garment and occasion require. For tennis, for instance, nothing could be smarter than a white linen dress piped with blue, sporting a matching tie and matching blue flannel jacket; while for the business woman a mess of crepe or tulle silk with a jacket of similar color, or one in a decidedly striking tone in contrast, forms a costume that does double duty indoors, and later for the coolth of

Leftovers May Be Finished Up In This OMELETTE

(Mrs. Mary Morton's Weekly Tested Recipe.)

Three eggs, beaten separately, whites first, then yolks; add one tablespoon milk or hot water to yolks, add to whites, season with a little salt and pepper, and pour into a omelette pan or well buttered frying pan. Be sure the sides as well as the bottom are greased. Put on low fire and cook slowly and evenly until bottom is brown, then put in oven until it is done through. Fold over and turn on hot platter. Leftover vegetables and meat may be added when the eggs have been beaten. Serves three.

THAT BREAKFAST COMPLEXION

By MADAME RUBINSTEIN

Do you like to look at your face in the mirror just after you've hopped out of bed in the morning and before you've hopped in to your bath? Frankly, it is at its best—your morning face!

It should be, even when your eyes are still sleepy and your hair rumpled. Your face should look flushed and fresh and rested, as dewy and bright as a child's after a night of sleep. If it doesn't, there's something wrong with your health. You've been playing or working too hard—going to bed too late—not eating the right things.

If your complexion has disappeared, if you look gray and old, with tiny wrinkles threading their way here and there, you need a freshening, pick-me-up, morning treatment to prepare your face for the day. It may be just an emergency measure, or you can make it a regular procedure, because this sort of treatment will really improve the health of your skin. Every skin needs some sort of morning treatment to put it in working order.

The young, healthy skin needs only a quick cleansing with a pasteurized cream (or with a washing preparation and water) followed by an application of skin tonic and make-up, if make-up is used. (Sometimes even the skin tonic is omitted.)

The older skin, and the young skin that has been neglected, needs more thorough treatment. Wake this type of skin with an application of a clearing, animating cream such as a good beautifying skin food. Leave it on while you bathe to brighten your face and stir up the circulation in your skin. Let the cold spray of your shower wash off the surplus. Then finish with a patting of skin-toning lotion followed by your powder and rouge.

If you pay more attention to your good looks at bedtime you will have less, always, to do in the morning. Thorough cleansing and stimulating (and nourishing for the skin that is dry or older) should be part of the before-bedtime program that every woman devotes to the care of her skin. But keep tab on your morning

Style Whimsies

Several of Worth's simple sports suits, with short jacket and separate skirt, have shirts with pleated fronts.

There is a marked tendency in the sports suits for mid-summer to substitute the shirt, in either silk or flannel, for the pullover or cardigan.

For a soapy, sudsy bath—use Melo

LIKE to have plenty of suds when you're bathing? Then don't bathe in hard water; why water it comes from the faucet. Soap combines with the hard water, and forms a dirty ring around the tub. That's the scum. And that's certainly not pleasant.

Hard water can be made soft. Just put 2oz. in the water and you have a very remarkable cleaner, with or without soap. Then watch the soap lather! Then watch the suds come! Then watch the scum go! Have you discovered how much more effective Melo makes soap? Get three cans today at your grocer's for the kitchen, the laundry and the bathroom.

Electric Cookery Is Healthier

Foods cooked with the pure heat of an electric range are untainted by smoke or fumes. Vegetables and meats (even the cheaper cuts) are cooked to a rich and melting tenderness, and all the natural juices are sealed in. Electrically cooked foods not only taste better but also hold their original nutrient intact.

You can enjoy electric cooking in your kitchen now. Convenient time payments and a liberal allowance for your present cooking equipment make it unusually easy for you to own a modern electric range. Come in and inspect the many attractive models.
