"Know the adage about 'despice'?"
 "What is it?"
 "Variety is despise of life."
 Judge.

Have—That's my place you see over there—the house and the garage close by.
 Stacker—Which is the garage, old man?—Answers

Slicker
 Lost Balloonist (as his ship swings low over a farm house)—Ahoj, where am I?
 Farmer—Heh, heh! Can't fool me. You're up there in that fool basket. Giddap. Bet.—Associated Magazine.

Then there was the deaf mute who was an accomplished lip reader. He attended a talking movie show and got ahead of the story.—Judge.

Two men were becoming abusive in the course of a political quarrel.
 "I think," cried one of them, "there's just one thing that saves you from being a bare-faced liar."
 "What's that?"
 "Your Whiskers." — Pearson's Weekly.

And then we have the stuttering man who choked eating alphabetical soup.—Judge.

First Policeman—Did you get that fellow's number?
 Second Policeman—No, he was going too fast.
 First Policeman—That was a pretty girl he had with him!
 Second Policeman—Yes, wasn't she?—Passing show.

"What happened to you, my poor fellow?"
 "My girl threw me down a flower."
 "But surely that couldn't have made such a wreck of you?"
 "Yes, it could. She forgot to
