Amorous Letter Brings Fine Of $100 When 'Date' Is Kept

A sentence of 90 days in the Oakland County jail or a fine of $100 was imposed on William Myers, 64 years old, 104 west Humphrey avenue, by Justice Buck when Myers pleaded guilty to sending annoying letters through the mails.

He was arraigned after a sanity commission appointed by Prosecutor Norman C. Orr declared the man sane.

He was arrested last week by Chief James Anderson who kept a "date" which Myers sought with a Birmingham woman. The woman, on receipt of an amorous letter, unsigned, turned it over to police. The letter requested a tryst at Woodward and Humphrey avenues. When Myers arrived he was met by Anderson and Patrolman William Green. He immediately admitted having sent the letter.

Villagers and the Village

By THE WANDERER

Although winter is passing, Michigan's winter birds still face a "pinch period," and suffering or losses are apt to be greatest just before real spring weather comes. The game division of the Conservation Department is urging citizens not to abandon their winter feeding program when the first spring thaws come.

ground feeders such as quail and pheasants may find a food supply in the fields following harvest. As this snow is eliminated by reason of snow and ice covering the ground, the birds will often turn to the fields. But during the winter most of these corn shocks are hauled away and used to find their food among the tall-growing weeds, such as burdock, teasel, ragweed and milkweed.

Although the citizens of Michigan are ordering a million trees from the Michigan State College nurseries this spring for forest planting, in addition to stock from other sources, it will be many years before all the state land which should be producing forests will be replanted, according to the statement of members of the white spruce will be planted to develop into timber for pulpwood.

By action of the Board of Education Monday night a suggestion that they post a copy of the Collier's moral code in each Birmingham school was laid on the table.

Another spring, maybe, March came in like a lamb with snow in its wool. Kiddies brought out their roller skates and there were many marble games in the streets

Chief Moore, formerly of Royal Oak Township, is the newly appointed head of the Bloomfield Hills village fire department. He is busy with organization work. County officials and heads of communities in Oakland County will be guests of the Hills village this noon at a luncheon after which they will inspect the new equipment arriving today. The department is expected to begin work immediately.

WE HEARD IT SAID BY—

Floyd S. Buck, Justice of the Peace: "It strikes me that the charter amendment is unwise because of the unfairness of the assessment. In the event that the amendment is passed, taxpayers will be financing pavements beneficial to a selected group of landowners. I am in favor of the passing of the two bond issues. It would seem that the present is the time to purchase the lots for the civic center. They could never be bought cheaper."

of Birmingham. In hat cleaning establishments, straw head pieces are on the shelves. But who is going to call in about the first robin?

A set of suggestions for smoke abatement are being prepared by Charles J. McCabe, who has been employed by the village to investigate the smoke conditions here. The suggestion sheets may be obtained at the village offices.

Baldwin High School students have gone to college. The colorful "swagger" hats being worn by the Baldwin students suggest frosh days on campus. One almost expects the padding and other signs of hazing.

Something novel in the line of window crashing was called to the attention of the Wanderer last Thursday. A large stone hurled by the Baldwin students suggest frosh days on campus. One almost expects the padding and other signs of hazing.

Statistics show that one out of every 30 students in Birmingham schools attends the Baldwin High School, while in Pontiac only one out of every 40 is in high school.

There is much talk of March winds. One village window is now displaying large paper kites in gay colors.

In the days of confusion from a newly installed numbering system one resident has placed a neatly printed sign, "New Number" over his new door tag.

A Harrowgate Youngster Goes to School

HE knows the fun of coasting down long hills—and the thrill of Spring! He's out doors a lot—it clears cobwebs out of the brain. School work's just a game! ... And his friends? Dad says the boys and girls are all the "right sort." Guess he means they make good pals. They do!

Harrowgate adjoins Birmingham's new Quarton School—and it's near Cranbrook, and just a short distance from Baldwin High.

Harrowgate is north of Quarton Road, within the limits of Birmingham, a NEW addition that is all its own.
