U.S. ENTANGLED WITH EUROPE, SPEAKER SAYS

World Politics Group Hears Final Talk Of Series

POINTS PEACE WAY

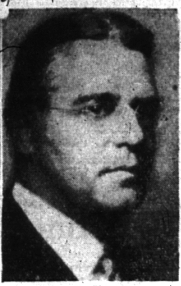

America today is entangled in European affairs Alden G. Alley, student of world politics and lecturer told his audience the World Politics class in their meeting Monday night at the Birmingham Public Library. Mr. Alley's talk marked the close of the series of lectures being sponsored by Birmingham and Royal Oak alternately by the League of Nations association.

Modern transportation has lessened the distance between America and Europe, Mr. Alley pointed out. Cultural, financial and industrial conditions also tend to entangle American affairs with those of Europe. "Without America Europe would collapse. But America is equally dependent on Europe. Investigations in world industry show this," he said.

Points Way
"There are three policies America can pursue to become disentangled from Europe. She can assert an absolute independence, she can maintain a state of anarchy, or she can establish a regime of law," he said.
Mr. Alley sees the two policies as impossible. "Industry alone makes absolute independence impossible," he said. "Anarchy with its lawlessness has proven injurious to government. The wisest policy, I believe, is the establishing of a lawful and peaceful regime, with cooperation as the keynote and no sacrifice of independence." He sees the Kellogg peace pact as a step towards such a regime.

Asks World Court
In Mr. Alley's opinion there are four institutions necessary for the establishing of a peaceful regime. "First, there must be world conferences or civilization will perish. There must be some opportunity for nations to get together and talk things over. Secondly, there is need of a world court manned by able and impartial men. Such a court would be all powerful as the supreme court of the United States, but would offer judicial hearings in times of controversy." The expenses of the court would be paid by the nations seeking its judicial advice. It would offer law rather than wholesale murder.
"That every president of the United States who has lived to see the World Court advocates the institution is to Mr. Alley a significant truth."
As a third necessary institution Mr. Alley sees some sort of world executive. "There should be an open forum where nations can talk with the conscience of the world." He cited the assembly of the League of Nations in Geneva which he likened to a town meeting as an example of this.
"Then if there are peace creating institutions all in accord with the ideals and policies of the United States. They are institutions even now in operation. The fourth institution which I believe necessary is a world police force. No such force is in operation today. Mr. Alley believes that before such an institution be established there will arise considerable controversy."

Drivers Escape Injuries In Motor Mishap

Slight injuries were incurred Sunday by E. J. Brown, of Clawson, knocked down by two cars which collided in front of the Eastern Michigan Motorbus station on Woodward avenue.

The cars were driven by Don Pilgrim, Sandusky, O., and Dave Eccles, of Flint. Neither driver was injured.

DRIVER FINED
Reckless driving cost Adam Hartell, of 119 State street, Pontiac, a $15 fine last Thursday in Justice Malcolm Hunt's court. The alternative was 70 days. The arrest was made by Patrolman William Green.

lished there will arise considerable controversy.
Object to Police Force
"At present the majority of the United States objects to furnishing any part of a world police force. I do not believe that the United States will submit to a police court, yet I believe that the time will come when this country will not interfere with the world police force so long as the force is doing its duty with nations which have submitted to the plan."
One quality which Mr. Alley believes is essential for the insuring of world peace among the nations is faith. "If faith would only replace suspicion, peace would naturally follow," he said.
A round table discussion was held following the talk.

NEPHEW INHALATOR RITES HELD IN VILLAGE FOR W. J. BELL

Now Used By Firemen
Device Expected To Save Lives In Suffocation Cases

A portable inhalator to be used in cases of gas asphyxiation, electrical shock and drowning is added to the equipment of the Birmingham fire department. The cost which amounted to $225 was provided in the 1929 budget.

In the past four months the Birmingham fire department has had three calls for an inhalator to be used in emergencies. Upon these occasions an outfit was borrowed from the Berkeley fire department, Capt. Vernon Griffith said.

He is confident that the inhalator aided in saving one of the three lives. The other two persons had been pronounced beyond hope by doctors, he explained. "I believe that we stand a better chance of saving lives now that the time involved in going to Berkeley for their equipment is eliminated," he said.

In instances of gas poisoning the inhalator is adapted to one or two victims as the case may demand. Two extra cans of oxygen insure an adequate supply for several hours of resuscitation.

J. B. Martin of Grandfield, Okla., found an old copy of his home-town newspaper handy to have around. When he heard a sneak thief in the house he rolled up the newspaper and pointed it at the marauder, causing him to submit to capture.
