"On Trial" opens in court on the first day of a murder trial. The accused, friend and debtor of the victim, has confessed to the crime. The testimony of the witness, of his wife and of the doctor who examined the dead man gradually unfolds a dramatic story that is not solved until the final gripping moment. "On Trial" is all-talking, and has a superb cast headed by Pauline Frederick.

DETROIT
Pretty nearly the whole town knows that "Diamond Lil" the by-and-by West piece which comes to the Shubert Detroit on Sunday night, June 2, is not a musical comedy but a melodrama of the days when the Bowery was the Bowery and not, as now, merely a street.

Nevertheless, musical comedy or not, the third act of "Diamond Lil" is as crowded with song numbers as any similar fragment of the musicals, with which Mr. Ziegfeld and other purveyors of eye-and-ear entertainment beguile the public, the difference being that whereas entrepreneurs of the current musical pieces engage a chorus and dragged "hot hits" from the period when Mother was a girl.

That third act, is laid in Gust Jorden's Bowery bumpy-tonk in the nineties and shows that disreputable dive at the heights of its efforts as a reporter uncovers the necessary data.

Sunday and Monday
"Caught in the Fog," a speedy, funny, and exciting crook chase uses as its locale a palatial yacht lying off the coast of Florida. The business has to do with the various sharpers, who raid the boat; until cops catch the culprits and bring the wild night in the fog to a short stop. It stars May McAvoy and Conrad Nagel and is part-talking.

Tuesday and Wednesday
The all-talking George M. Cohan comedy, "The Home Towners," is one of the most faithful comedies ever screened. It is a genial, heart-warming, chuckling play having to do with a small town business man who comes with his wife to the Big Town to free his boyhood pal, now U. S. millionaire, from his infatuation for a certain woman whom the country friend is assured is roping his old enemy in. Richard Bennett and Doris Kenyon head an all-star cast.

start the summer policy of the Oriental Theater, beginning Saturday. An usual motion picture features will be offered.

"The Woman I Love," starring Norman Kerry, is first of the new feature picture attractions, heading this bill. This is a story of married life, by Bernard McFadden, picturing the little trials and the big ones.
