SIDESWIPES In the World of Humor

The man who invented the phrase "pretty as a picture" had evidently never seen a tabloid newspaper.—Life.
Fond Mother—Quiet Dear, the sandman is coming.
Modern Child—Okay mom, a dollar and I won't tell pop.—Life.

Hammer and Tongs.
"Pop, what's a monolog?"
"A monolog is a conversation between husband and wife."
"I thought that was a dialog."
"No, a dialog is where two persons are speaking."—Capper's Weekly.

The Last of Him
The absent-minded professor has finally been killed. He jumped from an airplane and didn't open the parachute because it wasn't raining.—Life.

"Did You Call For Help," politely suggested the butler as he applied for a position.—Life.
"Thankful! What have I got to be thankful for? I can't even pay my bills."
"Why, man, be thankful that you are not one of our creditors."—Montreal Star.

A psychologist advocates punishing a child by boredom instead of spanking. This is easily effected by a little psychology.—Punch.

A Scotchman stole an automobile, but the police got him because after he had the car a while he sent the owner a bill for the gas he was using.—Life.

"You can shave without the loss of a second," states a safety razor advertisement. What we really want is a razor which will enable us to shave without the loss of our chin.—Humorist.

An author says some people keep on predicting the end of the world in spite of the fact that they are always wrong. But he must admit that they get a little nearer every time.—Passing Show.

"What's that awful humming?"
"Oh, just the theme song for a mosquito bite."—Life.

"What kind of a sandwich is that?"
"I think it's cheese plated."—Life.

Prodigal: "Father, I've a notion to settle down and go in for raising chickens."
Father: "Better try owls. Their hours would suit you better."

Jones: "I say, waiter here's a dollar."
Waiter: "Thank you, sir. I suppose you want me to reserve a table for you?"
Jones: "No I don't, I shall come in here in about ten minutes' time with two ladies and I want you to tell me that all the tables are engaged."
