Dinner Stories

"Is he sporting a dinky little mustache?" "Send him in." —Chicago Purchaser. Nothing But the Truth The prosecuting attorney had encountered a rather difficult witness. At length exasperated by the man's evasive answers, he asked him whether he was acquainted with any of the jury. "Yes, sir," replied the witness; "more than half of them." "Are you willing to swear that you know more than half of them?" demanded the man of law. The other thought quickly. "If I am willing to swear that I know more than all of 'em put together." Union Scale "So you saw me kiss your sister last night, did you? Well, buddy, say nothing about it. Here's half a dollar." The young brother pocketed the coin and then handing the young man a quarter, he added, "And here's your change, sir. One price to all is my motto."—Typo Graphic. Frank (proudly): "Yes, I sure did cure my wife of back-seat driving." John (doubtfully): "Yeah, how?" Frank: "Yes, indeed. The last time she tried to bowl me out for trying to beat a red light, I stopped right alongside of the cop, and he pinched her for impersonating an officer."—Exchange. No Room For Cream Said the young husband: "My dear, did you speak to the milk man about there being no cream on the milk?" "Yes, I told him about it this morning, and he explained it satisfactorily. I think it quite a credit to him, too." "What did he say?" "He said he always filled the bottle so full there was no room on the top for cream." Father: "What did you and Joe talk about last night, dear?" Daughter: "Oh, we talked about our kith and kin." Small Brother: "Yeah, pop, I heard 'em. He said, 'Kin I hev a kith' and she said, 'yeth you kin.'"—Hazel-Atlas News.
