Players Please Crowd In Opening Performance

"The Mountains of Bethor" is a brilliant play. When staged by a carefully chosen and well coached cast, such as presented the vehicle last Friday night at the Village Playhouse, it can not fail to score a hit.

It was a closing piece sparking enough to hold even the most restless of audiences and those who crowded the playhouse Friday night were no exception.

Robert Grindley in the role of Ratcliffe Willard, the young noble suitor of Angelica Pemberton, played by Miss Mary Isabel Davis gave an interesting interpretation.

Other roles were filled as follows: Miss Doris Gove, vice president; Mrs. Irene Hanley, secretary; and Miss Marion Hawkins, treasurer.
