FINED IN COURT

Second Accused Pleads Not Guilty And Avoids Trial In Court

Because he drove in Birmingham while drunk, Joseph Butkus, 31, of 2224 Wyandotte street, Hamtramck, was fined $100 with the alternative of 30 days in jail when he appeared before Justice Malcolm Hunt Monday.
Elton Drummond, 37, of 5319 Banger street, Detroit, will be tried before Justice Floyd S. Buck on a similar charge Saturday. He pleaded not guilty when arraigned Monday and bail was placed at $200.
William F. Buch, of 12120 Longview avenue, Detroit, was fined $50 by Justice Buck on a disorderly charge. He was arrested by police in Bloomfield Hills who found him asleep in his car and testified he was drunk at the time.

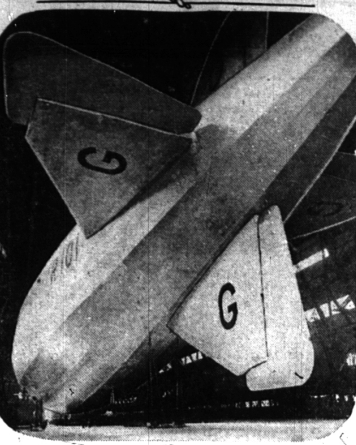

Bo BROADWAY

New York.—One of the Optimists running against Jimmy Walker has just made the startling discovery that The Debonair One rented the Central Park Casino for $8,500 a year and that the gross receipts from the blooming place average somewhere between two and three million dollars.
A million more or less never makes any difference to an Optimist. The breed is notoriously careless with its zeroes.
Hitting Jimmy in the Casino, as it were, is a mean trick because the Best Pressed Mayor New York Ever Had thinks a lot of the place. After a particularly hard day of Mayoring he rolls-royces up there and sometimes remains as late as 3 a. m.—the closing hour.
He makes no reply to these

Casino jobs, confining his campaigning in Manhattan to an open air talkie show in Longacre Square wherein he is filmed with suppliant palms beseeching the crowds to say: "Wherein have I been derelict?"
His opponents tell him, night after night, but Jas's only response is the reiterated query: "It's what The Boys term Nifty Psychology."
WHO'S BOSS?
John Gilbert and his current wife, Ina Claire, returned from Europe recently. Said M. G. M., for whom Jack labors, announcing the gladsome tidings:
"John Gilbert, accompanied by his wife, will arrive in New York, etc., etc."
And the heralds for Pathe, for whom the Queenly Claire toils, chirped thus: "Ina Claire, accompanied by her husband, etc., etc."
WHO THE BOSS WAS
Professor Pitkin of Columbia had just written a book called "The Art of Rapid Reading" in which he lists interesting results of tests of the relative powers of the trained and untrained human eye.
"I dropped in once on a business man," he says, "engaged in large scale international administration and listened to the growls of many subordinates over a strict order he had issued. It took the form of a card, propped up on everyone's desk, which read: 'Verbal Orders Do Not Go Here.'
"I heard how dreadfully this order was slowing down work and causing profound spiritual unrest. Yet the boss managed to transact several billion dollars' worth of business under the anti-talk law. His name was Herbert Hoover and he was feeding the world."

NEWEST AND LARGEST AIR LINER

Here's a graphic stern view of the largest and most luxurious dirigible in the world, the new British R-101 which has made successful trial flights in England. The huge air liner is equipped with six engines and 16 gas bags with a capacity of 5,000,000 cubic feet between them and giving a lift of more than 150 tons. With its crew and 52 passengers, it can cruise at 70 miles an hour.

of the dignified old City Hall, which was the loftiest building in town a century ago. The proposed structure is the latest, if not the final step, in the race for building height supremacy revived last year after a quiet of a decade and a half. Towering 1,000 feet above the level of Broadway, the roof of more than an acre will be employed as a landing field for air planes. The structure will cost more than $75,000,000. The ultimate cost will be nearer $100,000,000. It will be the highest man-made structure in the world, dwarfing the impressive 1,000-foot Eiffel tower in Paris, the tallest creation human energy has thus far projected.

ance, of a sense of justice and fair treatment.
It is rather a solemn idea—this raking pattern. Dangerous to make the wrong kind of patterns in the brain. It is not easy to strike across lots and beat new paths. We follow the old roads. Young folks are making patterns and making them easily and fast. Some day most of their happiness will depend upon the patterns.

WELLS
Few modern men have influenced the thinking of the average book reader more than a man who has just passed his sixty-third birthday at a place called Easton Glebe, Dunmow, Essex. A place with a name like that would have to be in England. He is Herbert George Wells, born in Bromley, Kent, in 1866.
Wells is a prodigious worker, a marvelous producer. He has written nearly a hundred books. He has written articles and pamphlets by the score. He has given thousands a clearer look at the world than they ever had before. He has written some excellent novels, but they have not been merely entertaining. They have made us think. It's a great man who can make anybody think.

Above almost all modern writers Wells has imagination. He sees a re-made world. He sees the nations united, working together for the happiness of their citizens. He sees the end of poverty and war.
These things are practical—if not in our time, in somebody's time. They can never come until they are thought about and written about. Herbert George Wells, more than anybody, thinks about them and writes about them.

Wells is a great man. There are few.
The most important result of setting the Roman question seems to be that the Pope got the opportunity to go to town.
With all the wisdom being syndicated daily by Dr. Cadman, Dr. Copeland, Arthur Brisbane and others, the rest of us hardly have to do any thinking at all.

There is no question in her mind, she certainly will tell her husband. Especially if he makes remarks about dinner being late. Time wasted in getting water has delayed her work, and the whole family suffers.

WHY?

A denizen of the Subway and Delicacies Belt writes thus to the dramatic editor of his favorite paper:

"I am taking this opportunity again to make an appeal for relief to us city-bred persons who must year after year pay exorbitant prices merely because butter-and-egg men from the plains are willing to come into our city and pay scalpers' fees for second rate musical comedies."
If they're second-rate, why go at all?
The whine of the sucker is music to the Broadway ear.

AS TO ANCESTORS
We owe a lot to our ancestors. There is, of course, more in heredity than in environment. But there is such a thing as riding on the oars of ancestry and getting nowhere. We should be grateful for the inheritance of strong constitution, for the bequest of ideals, and for any habit of thoughtfulness that may come naturally to us. But a long time ago it was well said that the man who has not anything to boast of but his illustrious ancestors is like a potato—the only good belonging to him is underground.
Ancestry, no matter how good, is something to spring from and not to stay with.

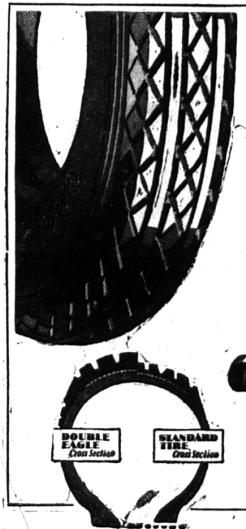

IN THE HEART OF FOLKS
Hearing news of new laws in Russia one begins to think the men at the head of the government there—some of whom are very able men—may have something to teach the rest of the nations. Travelers tell of regulations that might be good for the United States. And then comes a new law out of Moscow which exposes the government as hopelessly dumb in spots. One learns from the dispatches that a new edict has abolished the celebration of Christmas and all other religious holidays. But Christmas can't be touched by man-made rules. Christmas lives imperishably in the heart of folks.

$7,000,000 INSURANCE
Pierre S. duPont, Wilmington, Delaware, believes in life insurance. He carries policies for $7,000,000. John Willys believes in it, too. He carries a little under two million. Schenck, Lasky, and Zukor, in the motion picture and theater business, carry $5,000,000 each. The fact is there are more than 300 American business men and others who carry a million or more. Somebody says insurance does not pay dividends enough. The worth looking for there must be some reason for the fact that the most successful and hard-headed business men are usually the ones with the largest insurance policies.

Tires you can put on and "forget" — as long as you drive your car

It's a proved fact! Goodyear Double Eagles outlast the average driver's use of a car. Even so much as a puncture is the exception.
The cost? By the mile very little. Considering the super-margin of safety, freedom from delays and extra shock-absorbing comfort of riding on these big handsome tires, they are the most economical luxury you can enjoy.

The reason? They're the finest tires which Goodyear can build regardless of cost. But the price to you is moderate because of Goodyear's enormous output of tires—almost one-third of the world's total.

You'll be agreeably surprised to discover the reasonable cost of a change-over. Come in—talk it over—no obligation.
