Dinner Stories

Host—"Ye're late this morning, Mattie?"
 Mattie—"Well, sah, when Ah locked in de glass dis mornin' Ah couldn't see meself there, so Ah thought Ah'd gone to work. It was only some time afterwards dat Ah discovered dat de glass had dropt out ob de frame!"

 —Everybody's Weekly (London).
 On the doorstep stood a very miserable-looking tramp, in his hand a tattered hat.
 "Madam," he said, "can I do anything to help you? Is there any wood to be chopped?"
 "No, I'm afraid not," said the housewife, who had answered his knock.
 "Carpets to beat, p'raps?"
 "No, thanks."
 "Any gardening or other rough jobs to be done, then?"
 "No," thanks, "I don't think there's anything you can do today."

 The wayfarer heaved a sigh of relief and his miserable expression disappeared.
 "All right," he said cheerfully, "then p'raps I can have something to eat!"
 —Pearson's Weekly.
 He was visiting the newlyweds at their home. Everything was ana, but—
 "Why did you take an apartment with such a tiny kitchenette, Tom, old boy?"
 "Well, you're the first man I've told so keep it quiet. It's so small I can't get in there to help my wife when she's doing the dishes."
 —Pathfinder.
 A Scotchman's wife had a baby. He hurried to the hospital to see if the kid had any silver spoons in its mouth.—Judge.
