ing to a not very gullible commission why his auto was stolen. He parked it near the Detroit river front, east of the Water works park. Some of the commissioners insisted he could have been there for only one purpose, what with Canada being what it is and all. But he maintained firmly he was waiting to take his turn in a speed boat. At any rate the car was returned to him after recovery by Detroit police.

Yellow traffic lanes at Wood-ward avenue and Oakland, painted on the pavement this week should eliminate a traffic hazard there. The new lanes guide the cars away from an unprotected safety zone for north bound street car passengers.

Following the accident in Bloomfield Hills this week when an automobile killed a horse one night, someone, no doubt, somewhere, will start a movement to require horses to wear a tail light.

Many persons in the township who have taken the afternoon off and gone with their family to the Bloomfield Park in Kensington road have found it delightful. But before going, don't forget to get your pass at the township office.

Now that everyone is back from his vacation there is some opportunity to put the many fish stories in circulation again. It has been observed everyone on return from vacation has just had the "best time ever."

BLIMP GOES TO SEA FOR PASSENGER

This striking scene shows how a passenger on a steamer may be transferred to a dirigible at sea. The Goodyear dirigible Volunteer, equipped with pontoons, landed on the waters out of Los Angeles harbor to allow Charles P. Bayer to get aboard and hurry into Los Angeles faster than he could have on the steamer City of Honolulu. The feat proved the feasibility of transferring passengers at sea to save time.

Two Sons Of Mr. And Mrs. Charles Bridges Awarded Prize At Fair Report Is Made On Activities During Summer Months

In these days of baby contests Birmingham has something to be proud of in the way of ribbon winners. Last Saturday at the State Fair baby health contest Charles Fern Bridges, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Bridges, (Caroline Kurth, Birmingham), 27832 Grant avenue, St. Clair Shores, for the second time was named Michigan's champion baby.

Charles is two and a half years old and was pronounced 99.9 per cent perfect by Dr. Lillian Smith judge of Michigan's healthiest baby contest. But Charles is just a member of a prize winning family. His brother, Richard, one year old, captured first prize and a $10 gold piece for being the healthiest child in the year-old group.

Although Charles and Richard are not full fledged villagers they are in Birmingham often at the home of their grandmother, Mrs. Emilie Kurth, of west Maple avenue.

As for their mother, she is a native of Birmingham, and is well known in the village, being a graduate of the Baldwin High School. Her record of her champion babies but her recipe for their health is a simple one. "Hard work is responsible and a strict observance of diet routine and hours."

There's Very Little To Choose Between Athletics And Cubs, Likely Rivals In 1929 World Series, Says Martin

BY PHILIP MARTIN

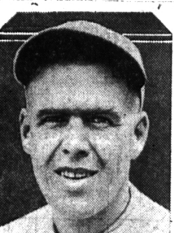

A WORLD series battle that would go down in history as one of the toughest baseball fights staged between two teams is what the impending contests between the Cubs and Macks appear to this writer.

It would be hard to rival the scraps of old days between the Giants and Athletics and other traditional foes, but the balance of the teams commanded by Mack and McCarthy forecasts close scores.

Toppling Mack's mound stars is George Earnshaw, the right-hander who was the first of the big leaguers to win 20 games this season. Wise baseball men say George is the "best" right-handed pitcher in the game today. Earnshaw, pitching to that array of right-handed Cub batters, should hold a distinct edge on Root, Bush or Malone, the Cub pitchers. Even though the Cub pitchers have several right-handed batters in the Mack outfit to work on.

In fact, the big guns of the Mack machine are right-handed batters. We refer to Foxa, Simmons and Bine Miller. Throughout the season, several of the good right-handed pitchers of the American League have not been so easy for these lads. Young Wee Ferrell of Cleveland stood them in their tracks four times and they have had trouble with Sam Gray, George Piggas, Charley Redding and others.

THE infielders are fairly well balanced. In the opinion of this writer, the Macks have a distinct edge at first and short where Foxa and Boley perform. The Cubs have an edge at second and third in Hornsby and McMillan. The outfielders are well balanced.

George Earnshaw, star with the Athletics, and Guy Bush, Chicago ace moundman (below), are likely to face each other in the coming world series. Mack Wilson might have a slight edge on Mule Haas. Simmons must be given the call, however, over Stephenson. We prefer the fleet, hard-hitting Kiki Cuyler to Bing Miller. Cuyler has been leading both leagues in stolen bases and has been hitting well above .300 this year. Cuyler will be eager to perform in this series, as Donie Bush kept him on the bench during the world series between the Yanks and Pirates because of personal reasons. With any kind of luck Cuyler is going to be one of the bright stars in the series.

MACK has two other fine hitters in Grove and Walberg. We fear the Macks are going to run into trouble in the game that Walberg pitches, even though his record for the season is exceptional.

In our opinion Malone and Bush have good chances to win the game. Both are right-handed ball that is a beauty, and when he's right he is death to right-handed batsmen. He has a sharp curve as well as Foxa, Simmons and Miller have shown weakness against that sort of pitching.

The Cubs have a slight disadvantage in the fact that their big first sacker, Charley Grimm, probably will not get into the game. Rags Stephenson is also disabled, suffering a hernia during a recent game.

IN the catching department everything must be given to the Macks. Mickey Cochrane is the catcher in the Philadelphia engine. He inspires confidence in the men who play with him. It is almost impossible to ruffie him in similar cases. Mack could use Perkins in one of the games, but we doubt it.

The game on paper, appear to be evenly matched. If it isn't a great series, blame it on the paper.

QUARTET ASSESSED FINES IN COURT

Two girls and their two companions were hauled before Justice Floyd S. Beck Friday on charges of disorderly conduct. Robert Briggs, 642 Stinson avenue, Detroit, driver of the car in which they were arrested in Bloomfield Hills, paid a $75 fine. The girls, Miss Wanda Dersman and Miss Eleanor Gaetall, both of the Clayton Hotel, Detroit, and Luke Lucas, 3780 Maybury avenue, Detroit, were fined $35 each. Patrolman Isma Banks made the arrests.

Fred Carhall of Bluffton, Ind., has received $25 in a letter from a man who picked his pocket nearly 20 years ago, taking $15. The letter said the extra $10 was interest.

Where does business go when your salesman leaves?

Social connections are a great asset to a salesman. Yet they may be a liability to the salesman's house.

The salesman with the right connections is sure of his customers.

When he wants an order he walks in on the big boss and gets it.

But the well-connected salesman often sells HIMSELF rather than his house or his product. When he leaves for fields that look greener, his accounts become inactive to YOU and usually go with HIM.

Usually . . . except when his house uses printing to sell its product while the salesman is selling himself.

This safety valve (direct mail) in modern business should not be overlooked. Intelligent and consistent use of frequent direct mail is indispensable.

We would appreciate an early opportunity to talk over your problems and work out a satisfactory campaign of direct mail to compete with and assist your "personality" salesmen.
