Maybe It's Only Sentiment

The picture in this ad means a lot to us. Possibly it is a matter of sentiment. Here's how we feel about the dog. A faithful creature that is man's best friend, say some folks. A lot of truth in that, we believe. The dog IS faithful. He is dependable. He is loveable. His instinct is to protect you at all times. He senses danger for you and trys to warn you. If you have kiddies in the family, he will love and protect them, too. The dog is humble. You, as his master, can punish him severely, but he continues to love you. All in all, he is one of the finest creations on the earth. But why should we be talking about dogs? Our business is to sell groceries and the like. We agree to that and we want to tend to our business. But this thought of sentiment still lingers with us. It seems that maybe there is application for a comparison. It has occurred to us that possibly the local independent merchant is something like the dog in the picture. After all, doesn't his position in the community compare with the faithfulness and loyalty of the humble animal? Maybe it's only a matter of sentiment with us.
