

GOLF

All next week, starting Sept. 1, members of the Birmingham Golf club will qualify for the club championship tournament.

Saturday and Sunday, the semi final round of the Directors trophy tournament will be played. With Ray Foley and W. E. Dunham, meeting in the upper bracket, and Bill Schildmiller and Fred Schwarz in the lower bracket, these four reacher the semi-final match play in which they were victorious last week as follows: Mr. Foley defeated Hugh Barton, four and two; Mr. Dunham defeated Dr. W. G. C. Cole, one and four; Mr. Schildmiller defeated C. C. Gray, two and one; and young Mr. Schwarz, aged 17, defeated his father, Herman Schwarz, four and three.

The Labor Day program at Birmingham Golf club includes a two-mixed foursome, men's invitation, in the morning, and a "tomorrow" contest in the afternoon. "Tomorrow" contest, we learn, is a fancy name for a flag tournament; the player handling is decided by the par of the course for allotment of strokes, and he plays until the strokes are used.

Last Sunday at Bloomfield Hills country club, a "birdie" contest was held in an 18-hole match play. Palmer Watling was first class A with seven birdies; and G. A. Reid won class B with six.

Those who followed the scores of the Western Open tournament at Indianwood last week-end observed that in the final tally, Bob Wauve, after making excellent scores throughout, finished seventh, with 291.

Shaw is the son of Mr. and Mrs. E. Shaw, of Ans street, and is a professional at Aurora, O., a suburb of Cleveland. He began to play as a golfer early in life, and was a student in the Baldwin high school, from which he was graduated in 1922. He entered the first Open tournament at Oakland Hills in 1922 and finished third in the Western Open contest, with 286, seven strokes behind the champion, Gene Sarazen.

At Watrous, Oakland Hills professional and holder of the Michigan Open championship cup, placed third in the Western Open contest, with 286, seven strokes behind the champion, Gene Sarazen.

and one stroke behind Al Espinosa, the runner up.

Representative golfers of Sylvan Glen, in their fourth team match of the season, Sunday met and managed to defeat the Plum Brook octet, 6½ to 5½, in the closest match of the season.

In the singles matches, the Sylvan Glen golfers won, 5 to 3, but in the team matches, the Plum Brook golfers noed them out, 2½ to 1½. Frank and Ed Beaure defeated B. McCavern and V. Croston, 1 to 0. Russ and Harold Beaure split with W. Melville and B. Patchell; Bill Beaure and Frank Jaster defeated W. Graham and George Moughler, while A. Davis and Ed Ervasti of the Sylvan Glen group defeated F. Allard and Dr. Davis.

On next Sunday the Sylvan Glen team meets Plum Brook in a return match. So far this season, Sylvan Glen golfers have defeated teams from Bob-O-Link, Wise's and Plum Brook. The inter-club matches are sponsored in an effort to promote and establish a public links at Watrous.

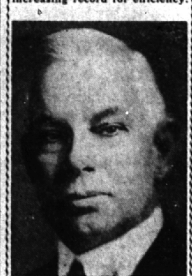

Bill Fenwick, of Redford, who scored a 76 Friday in the Western Open golf tournament at Indianwood, is the first golfer to shoot par, 34, on the Lancaster Hills.

CIRCULATE PETITIONS

TO ANNEX HAZEL PARK

Ordinarily the danger from fires in the southern third of the state is not high. However, the extreme hazard now present makes the danger of spreading fires great and the responsibility lies on the farmer to protect his own and his neighbors' property.

"Indeed! Still, too often, I think, superficiality is only skin deep."

Clarence L. Smith

Republican Candidate for Prosecuting Attorney

I believe that you should be concerned with the age, legal experience, and reputation of the entire prosecutor's staff. You should be satisfied that the Prosecutor's Office is on friendly and workable terms with all other law enforcement agencies.

Your money can be wasted by the issuance of unwarranted and un-investigated complaints.

Partiality or bias in administration each leads to disrespect for the law.

Common courtesy is required in private business and should be demanded from public servants.
