THURSDAY, AUGUST 7, 1930

NOTE: The Eccentric is pleased to publish stories of events which have news value and which are written by persons not connected with the paper. The right to publish is granted for one week unless otherwise specified. If the author desires that the work should be published for a longer period, the publisher will be glad to make such arrangements. All articles should be sent to the editor, and should be accompanied by a return address. The publisher will not be held responsible for the return of manuscripts.

(This week the editor of The Eccentric is filling the editorial column of the Charlotte News-Tribune, while Earl H. DeFoe is entering the first six weeks in Denmark and Sweden. What follows appears in the Eaton County newspaper.)

This Political Game

Between political fits, spasms, convulsions, and sometimes apoplectic strokes, the people of this country mind their own business, largely. For a few weeks prior to an election, however, they get "het up" as various and sundry politicians hold aloft flaming and smoking torches; most of the combustion being done by the politicians, and not by the people to the music made that singe the stalwart trees that grow in our citizen-forest.

One of these political catastrophes is right upon us in Michigan. Every county in our state is not only interested in its own internal affairs, but is having its attention focused upon the larger stadium of state politics, and also national.

County officers will not go begging this year. Most of them have three or more candidates seeking to "do their duty" in behalf of a long-suffering public. The appalling progress being made by many citizens in the realm of public service, plus a business year somewhat depressed, have brought out many otherwise peacefully inclined people as candidates. Of course, the present primary system is partially to blame for this great array of political timber. But that will be ironed out, some day not long hence, with the introduction of some other form of election machinery. Until human nature is made more unselfish, more willing to make personal sacrifices for the public welfare, government will continue to function inefficiently and dishonestly; taxation more and more will become a legalized form of looting the public purse, and a capitalist democracy will gradually march nearer to the brink of the chasm of social chaos.

Business Needs Golden Rule

There are times when the truth of a Sunday School lesson makes little impression upon the minds of men and women; then along come the old laws of compensation, either of justice or economics, to compel attention. For instance, within the last ten years, due to internal expansion, the United States has found it necessary to sell its wares all over the world. It has learned ways of making or growing necessities and luxuries—ways that have produced more than its citizens can consume. This results in the necessity for foreign markets, without which our whole structure of business will fall into the loss column.

Many of the internal problems faced by the United States today are the result of our lack of a consistent national economic policy which would build up international good will and provide a foreign market for our surplus products.

Whether we like it or not we are forced to admit that permanent American prosperity is largely dependent on world prosperity.

Civilization demands that we understand and cooperate with other nations to secure the fullest economic development of the world.

In the words of Owen D. Young, "What shall we do with our surplus wheat or cotton, or what you please? We must get rid of it. There are only two ways. Either we must burn it at home or sell it abroad. If America starts to burn surplus wheat when people are hungry elsewhere in the world, that war will start a conflagration which we cannot stop."

There is no way out except to market this surplus where men are hungry and where men are underclothed.

If American living standards are to be improved, our living standards must be improved at the same time. If industrial and social life in the rest of the world, it must likewise be improved in our country. No nation can stand by itself. That may be damaging to the ego, but it is a fact.

Cartoons, Comics and Congress

Representative John J. Boylan of New York seeks to have a staid and dignified contents of the Congressional Record—that famous perennial and increasing Epistle of the Politician to his constituency. Believes Rep. Boylan: "The Congressional Record should reflect the manners—good or bad—the customs, the habits, the inventions, the arts, the thoughts, the opinions, the ups and downs of American life as a civilization. Furthermore, it would gather from Mr. Boylan's remarks, the Congressional Record should become a clearer reflection of Congress—including the funny antics of certain Representatives and Senators, with their ups and downs."

THE WARM weather that we are now enduring, if capable of being "canned" for future use, would go a long way toward helping on next winter's coal bill, wouldn't it?

The State Campaign

Have you observed the current tactics in Michigan's state politics? Have you not shrugged your shoulders in disgust as you watched the uncertainty of Governor Fred W. Green with regard to his supposed successor? Did you ever see a public figure shift about so feebly as the lionized candidate whenever his position was sought upon the subject of Wilbur M. Brucker? Did you ever see any copy-book maxim that would approve the action of Secretary of State John S. Haggerty, when he sought to keep George W. Welch's name on the gubernatorial ticket? Did you ever see a Republican candidate correct etiquette for the Republican party to accept the aid of such staunch Democrats as Judge Edward J. Jeffries or Willis M. Brewer as a means of electing a Republican candidate for Governor?

It will be recalled that The Eccentric was among the first of Michigan's weekly newspapers to support Fred W. Green four years ago. Although we have commended Governor Green for many of his official acts since then, his present attitude merits our disgust—and we hesitate not to let it be known. In so doing, we feel that he, too, is about to re-enter private life a much disgusted individual; for we hope that the discipline of a year in the State House, has found the practical game of politics somewhat soiled pastime—with a reversal of an old saying that reads "the public official be damned." In this respect it must also be recalled that the Governor, although not the aggressor in some of his official financial happenings, must bear the brunt of public dissatisfaction with a portion of his administration.

Who will succeed Governor Green? Our own guess is that Alex J. Groesbeck, (whom The Eccentric criticized for his apparent autocracy during his last term) will win over Wilbur M. Brucker. We do not consider the Democratic candidate, Judge Edward J. Jeffries, a serious contender. Mr. Groesbeck has bided his time in Detroit, waiting for an opportunity to render further political service to his state. He has the experience and the ability to make a good Chief Executive; we also feel that Mr. Groesbeck's Executive ability has leveraged his heart with a kinder, more friendly, attitude towards others, although we feel sure that he will never lessen his intolerance for anything that smatters of corruption or sheer incompetency in public office. Mr. Groesbeck, by all the rules of the game, we feel, will be elected Governor. He will make a greater record in that office than any other administration, including his own three previous terms. From Lansing we prophesy his eventual departure for Washington—for the time has come in American life when CHARACTER, including ability and reliability, must be put to do, it becoming necessary to save these United States. The extent to which Mr. Groesbeck will soar as a public official is limited only by the Constitution of the United States.

Mark our word, folks: CHARACTER is the human attribute that the American people seek for now on to place in charge of the Ship of State. And Alex J. Groesbeck has plenty of this stuff—don't forget that.

What about Wilbur M. Brucker? Well, we have a warm and kindly personal feeling toward this 36-year-old Saginaw chap. He is literally on fire with a sincere desire to serve the people; but he is, in our opinion, about four years too premature in his striving for political preferment. The present campaign will teach him many things—chiefly that the only correct way to prevent one from getting into entangling alliances is to have a record behind one, and let the record provide a major portion of the motive power for a campaign. It is too bad that Mr. Brucker was forced into his present position, and that out of it all will come a purifying and a melting that will bring him for further public work. In the meantime he will follow the old Biblical admonition, "Occupy, till I come."

So wags the political world. In the meantime, September 9 is just around the bend—so settle back in the comfortable chair and observe the campaign. As it waxes warmer, and warmer in the meantime, never forget that this great game of politics requires your tax money to keep it going. You want the most for your money, don't you? Then don't overlook those two requirements for any job: ability and the will to do.

The Constructive Thoughts

Mankind, in its regard for property, assumes the same attitude it does toward human life, namely: destruction. In his feverish haste to acquire something older age (not forgetting much for middle age's fun) man is ruthless in his use of the resources of life. If you don't believe this, just recall:

How foolishly nations may get into war, and kill millions of people.

How impractical is the handling of our knowledge of prevention and cure of disease.

How seldom do we eat all the food placed before us—and how quickly the national garbage cans are filled.

How quickly we discard our wearing apparel, our automobiles—even before they are old.

How thoughtlessly the woodman's axe has slain the stalwart trees of our forests.

How unfair most of us are toward ourselves; how little of the real values of life we are able to learn, and apply.

Some day mankind will make further progress toward constructive measures of, and for, human life. Day by day, the world is laboriously learning the lesson of the necessity of self-preservation. Men and women are learning that, as one carelessly throned once carelessly thrown thoughtless destruction, so may high places among mankind's balconied habitations, start a conflagration that can sweep around the world.

Thoughts constructively aimed are needed in most individual lives; then the collection of individuals we call a nation or a world will avoid the pitfalls of destruction.

...EX...TRIX

ULYSSES H. (Hackneyed) Phrase was a snapper up of unconcerned trifles, a chattering libertine more aimed against than sinning, the heir of all the ages who had the defects of his qualities, a new equal and no superior. At the psychological moment he was conspicuous by his absence, he was a goodly figure, the light fiction persuasion who did seriously incline to the filthy breeze.

Frequently he sought the tender mercies of the cups that cheer but not inebriate... which would be laughable if it were not tragic. Pity his 'tis true. A guardian of the law one winter's night threw out the draught or so the cetera he loved so well.

At the feast of reason Ulysses' flow of thought was a snapper up of unconcerned trifles, a chattering libertine more aimed against than sinning, the heir of all the ages who had the defects of his qualities, a new equal and no superior. At the psychological moment he was conspicuous by his absence, he was a goodly figure, the light fiction persuasion who did seriously incline to the filthy breeze.

"Gum" declares the Arkansas state what you chew when you ain't hungry, hardly an "eat" as the sumpin' else wen it's new but Gum isn't new but Gum is stretchy like rubber. A n' it's things with it, hardly, 'cause it's a lotta gum chewed for a couple days has wrinkles like back home it got out political bubbles but it shouldn't ought to be swaller'd 'cause it sticks to your throat and might make you sick, probably.

THE DAILY GRIND IN CHINA

The Other Chap Says Something

Dear friends and fellow countrymen and voters: As you all know I wanna go back to congress to guide the destinies of this fair nation and help keep property here to stay. Ever since my bean elevator went into the hands of receivers back in 1919, I have been very much interested in government and have done much to help the nation's business. Now the newspapers all said that we congressmen hustled right back home to get our political fences when we adjourned the other day. But I defy any character assassin to prove that that was the case where I am concerned. It always seems good to see the home folks and the reason I took an airplane ride to get home here was because I wanted to see you, all and bring you a message. 'Cause Jimmie Doakes, who thinks he should oppose me, was all set to make a speech tomorrow. As for mending fences, everybody knows that I haven't done any fence mending since I left the farm with my mere youth to come to the city to make good as you all know. And even then I never had anything to do with mending fences. They were good mending my folks, and I notice that they are still used by most of the farming people around here. I don't have nothing to do with these new-fangled contraptions put out by my record shows that I have been a very progressive man in congress. Three times I have had inserted in the Congressional Record articles about the big summer time in Washington. I have had district every year, with their motor yachts and seaplanes and golf courses. I defy anybody to show me a member of congress who has done more good for his district. And furthermore, I think that if re-elected, I can get four articles into the Congressional Record next year. How like me to bother you about those other things, such as how I voted on the tariff and the pension and such stuff because it don't really mean much. But you all know that any time you come to the Washington, I'm always glad to see you and that I can usually arrange to let you into the White House. Of course you can't all get into the kitchen at the same time, because the president is always there. I can take you out to breakfast at the same time the president is setting down to his breakfast in the White House, and that's just about next to it. So in conclusion, I wanna say that I hope the voters of this district will let me vote for the Washington, I'm always glad to see you and that I can usually arrange to let you into the White House.
