

A TAILOR'S DREAM AT LAST IS TRUE

Matthew Cammarere Takes American Bride On Honeymoon To Italy

A dream cherished for 17 years has at last come true for Matthew Cammarere, owner of the Matthew's Tailor shop on East Maple avenue. Ever since coming to this country from Italy when he was a boy, Mr. Cammarere has desired to return to his country with an American bride.

On New Year's Eve, Mr. Cammarere was married to Mrs. Virginia Freeman, of the Freeman Beauty salon in the Levinson building. The couple left immediately for New York, and sailed Saturday for Italy, where they will visit the groom's parents. Later, they will make a tour of Europe.

The wedding was performed by Justice Meislin Hunt, and was witnessed by Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Colby, of Oakland avenue. Returned from Europe at the end of two months, the couple will reside in Birmingham, and continue the management of their business, which have been established here for several years.

Mrs. Cammarere is the mother of a 14 year old son by a former marriage, Milton Freeman, Jr., who is making his home with Mr. and Mrs. E. F. Painter, of Watkins street, during his mother's absence.

The WORLD and All By CHARLES B. DRISCOLL

I'M FLATTERED
Winona, Minn., continues to produce letters that make me feel fine. For some reason or other, Winona seems to be a particularly neighborly town. I get letters from there, addressed directly to me at my home in Yonkers, from people I've never before heard of. By the way, if readers who have written me and received no answer will address me at 2200 Times Building, New York City, they will be sure of getting a personal reply.

This latest letter from Winona is by Mrs. G. R. Christiansen, 710 Washington street. She says, in part:

"I try never to miss one of your articles, and there have been many that I felt tempted to comment upon. Your column, 'Who's Vulgar Now?' made me glow with pride, even though I knew it with out being told. But your 'Fathers' made me hunt my fountain pen. I have long felt that most people are not fair to fathers.

"In our home on Mothers' day there is always a gift for father, too. It should be fathers' day. I love my mother dearly, but I love my father equally, and he knows it, for I often tell him so. Thank you for all the good things you give us."

Naturally, this letter gives me a glow, because it praises fathers and it is generously praiseful of my column.

I believe it's true that father is too often taken for granted as the income-producer, and children sometimes don't think much about him until he falls ill and the income slumps.

But this is partly father's fault, too. So many fathers are afraid to show affection toward their children. In fact, many men are afraid to show affection toward anybody. This is an unfortunate weakness. The mother seldom hides her love from her children, while the father often thinks it proper to assume a stern attitude, never abating to bestow a kiss or a caress. Father pays for his seeming coldness, very often, by a lonely, breaking heart. It shouldn't be so.

Many men and women owe much to the sterling qualities of their fathers. I have had many letters from readers, acknowledging this kind of debt to dead fathers. I am glad to have a letter from this Minnesota woman, who makes her acknowledgment while her father is still living. I congratulate that father.
