Society

Mrs. Charles W. Matheson, accompanied by her two daughters, Miss Ann and Miss Jane, arrived Saturday at their home on Vaughn road after a West Indian cruise of several weeks.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles J. Shain returned by motor to their home on Pierce street Sunday after a vacation in Florida.

Mrs. Bert Morley, of "High Hullo," and her daughter, Miss Betty Blanchard, returned Sunday from Melbourne, Fla. Mrs. Morley was the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Edward H. Jewett; while Miss Blanchard visited Mr. and Mrs. Dan Davis, who will take up their residence in Birmingham about May 1.

Miss Sally Low Taylor, of Memphis, Tenn., arrived yesterday to be guest of George Worthington House and his daughter, Miss Susanne House, of Bloomfield Hills. Miss Taylor is a former school friend of Miss House and entertained her for several weeks during the winter.

Saturday evening, Harrison Phelps will be host at the Detroit Yacht club at a small dinner party in honor of Miss Taylor.

Mr. and Mrs. Reuben O. Gill expect to leave their home "Square Acres" shortly to spend some time at French Lick Springs.

Frocks For The Woman In Town

Left, navy tailored suit for street wear; center, suit for informal afternoon or general wear; right, costume for formal wear of sheer flat crepe or Georgette.

By LUCY CLAIRE

To be strictly in it—ready for any hour, any occasion of the 24-hour day—the feminine wardrobe should contain four types of costumes for town wear. There is the tailored sports suit, which many young women, especially those who have entered the business world, find most convenient from morning to night. It is correct for street wear at any hour of the day. A tailored suit of this type, most appropriate for business, is shown at the left of the sketch. This is of navy, with tuxedo rever, fitted jacket, and a gored skirt, and is worn with blue of black kid shoes and a blue or black felt hat.

Next comes the type of frock or suit a bit more softened, intended for informal afternoon or general wear. This is an excellent type of costume for all day wear, for the women who must be ready at a moment's notice to attend a conference, a luncheon, address a club meeting or do any of the many things the business woman executive is called upon to perform. It lends a little more dignity to the occasion, and is as appropriate for the office as it is for addressing an audience of club women.

Long Skirt

An example of this type of frock, with its skirt dropping about two inches longer than the frock, is shown at the center. It is fashioned from flat crepe which may be black, blue, green or even red, if it is becoming. It is very simple in line, with stitchings carrying out a design on the skirt and bodice, has even hemline, normal belted waist, and lingerie touches at the neck; also at the sleeves if desired. With this type of costume the kid shoe is correct, and may be of black, as black accessories will harmonize with any of the colors mentioned.

For formal afternoon the costume is more elaborated, and the skirt slightly longer, say six inches from the knee, or a little over if worn by a very tall figure. The uneven hemline may or may not be a feature. The model shown at the right is of sheer flat crepe or georgette. Fullness is introduced into the skirt by shirring. The hemline is longer at the back. Note the bolero jacket and the elaborated sleeve treatment which the longer skirt has brought into vogue. The kid pump, one-strap, or sandal model, with medium high heel, would be most appropriate for this type of frock. Evening dresses are ankle length, or touch the floor. Some have trains. For general evening wear, however, the skirt that clears the floor has been found most convenient, especially for dancing. It need not be cleaned and repaired after every wearing, and the male escort is not in danger of treading upon it, as in the case of the train. Slippers in pump or sandal model, matching the color of the frock, are quite the thing for this type, and may be of moire, satin or crepe.

"I'll admit, Peg, that I once said all cleaners were alike. But since you've been sending my suits to Ridley's I've discovered my error. It is obvious to me now that Ridley's Miraclean is a superior, odorless cleaning method, and their form-pressing makes my suits look tailor-made without the additional expense. We're both Ridley boosters now."

The average men employed in factories or offices work only 44 hours per week, or 8 hours for five days, and four hours for Saturday.

All but ten or eleven of the 60 hours work for the farm woman were spent on home-making activities. The rest included dairying and care of gardens, poultry, and so on.

No figures are at hand for working hours of women in cities or towns, but it is known that in cities a higher percentage of women work in factories, offices, and stores, and in such cases they have daily working hours similar to the male wage earners.

Lindy's airplane shows the effect of the woman's influence. The military seats in the cockpit now have been upholstered. Exhaust pipes now carry the fumes
