Week-End Law Violators Pay For Speeding, Other Offenses

Fines totalling $109 were collected in Justice Floyd S. Buck's court last week end from speeders, fish law violators, and other offenders. Sentences of 10 days each were imposed on three boys convicted of stealing apples from a private orchard.

Speeders were as follows: Earl Harry Wilson, 629 W. Milwaukee avenue, Detroit, $10; Joseph J. Macklin, 2000 Elmhurst avenue, Highland Park, $15; Harold Mack, 1543 Baker street, Detroit, $10; and Floyd Tester, 63 Ruth street, Pontiac, $14.

The three were arrested by Deputy Herbert J. Crooks, The Pontiac Sand and Gravel Co. was fined $5 because one of their trucks was traveling with the cut out open.

New York, Sept. 4.—There are 25,000 quacks in Gotham who annually foss millions of dollars from the pockets of sophisticated and suffering New Yorkers, with their "life-giving" elixirs of sugar-water, at one buck a bottle. The Big Town spends more on fake cures than on legitimate medicines. Authorities are unable to prosecute because the victims "find" themselves, billed, instead of raising a howl, thankful rather than admit that they are quacks. Thus the charlatans flourish.

"Don't take MY word for it—don't take anyone's word. Read the label and be convinced!"

fact: Brother Collins is no journaling in Trumbull at the expense of the State for a brief tenure. — He is said to have "rented" coil fencing the "street" from which he might "gossip" with visitors while a keeper in his day should guard to see that he was not interrupted.

It may or may not be true. So far as Don goes it's not improbable. That's one led who knows human nature some, and who knows just how far judicious expenditure of money will carry a man in this dusty, nerve-ridden, old world.

Collins' boss, everything, one apple-knocker insisted it. Re-good looking, well read, Harvard spoken, has personality, wears his clothes, looks like a man, to be sure. His one handicap is his philosophy of life. He thinks that morality counts for nothing, the best possible bargain with amendment.

It's a brand of spirituality that boggles the rosters of the prince of Lilliput.

WHEN EATIN' WAS EATIN'

"Of course it's always all right to "look back" with a grin. I'll recall lunching one day at Smith's (I mean) and ordering a baked potato. The waiter delivered nearly a foot long and about a inch and a half wide and was actually succeeded to diffuse the potatoes, spreading them with large, rectangular portions of century butter.

Whereupon an elderly man sitting opposite me, in blue and white checked, (I believe) cluster and wearing a straw boater (I was said to be) angrily summoned a waitress and loudly demanded accommodations for the other party of the dining room.

Questioning addressing the waitress, I asked her to bring me a baked potato between the eyes declaring that he was John Brown's potato. (If he was "John" it was at all with a damnable kid who didn't know the letter "c" called a baked potato but he'd been told to talk to the South of Black Folks.

PHILANTHROPIST TO BE

I was talking to a young fellow the other night who is supposed in the drug store business in Harlem way.

"I came out college three years ago with a thousand bucks, 'th' of 'em gone," he said.

"Somebody gave me off of it," I say more racket he began. "You made a lot of dough on that. You could clean out my place if you were not 'th'." I ask him, "I would be the 'var' of 'em?"

He gave me a line on his own profits. About a week him 'th' gallons. After it's been cut and spread with butter he told me that he looked 'th' 'em.

Some day that young man will be a millionaire and when he gets old and feeble he will be the grove he'll probably endow a hospital or a bank of learning. Maybe he'll even devote something to help for the South of Black Folks.

Assault Here

Maybe the old-time doctor didn't know but he didn't seek you $10 for sending you to somebody who did.—Brooklyn Times.
