MICHIGAN BELL TELEPHONE CO.

Anne Campbell, Jane Campbell, well-knew and beloved Michigan pactus, has caught the remainers of glen associated, with the telephque and has expressed it charmingly in the following lines, reprinted by special premission of the author and of The Detroit News, which published the poem November 13, 1930. (Cappright, 1930):

Long Distance Telephone

Over the lonesome miles, your voice meets mine in space,
And in a few short sentences you say

Enough to pull the sun out from his hiding place And turn my nighttime into glorious day.

In days gone by beneath the window of his love, The troubadour sang goldenly and long. His chosen lady listened from her room above, And drifted off in slumber to his song.

Now in a few crisp phrases flung across the wire You tell me all that warbler could impart. The telephone has grown to be the modern lyre from which the lover sends his singing heart.
