

PERMIT GRANTED TO BUILD OFFICE

Permission to erect a temporary real estate office on his property on Woodward avenue at the southerly village limits was granted to Rex Humphrey by the village commission Monday night, following the receipt of Mr. Humphrey's petition.

The building code specifies that none but fire-proof buildings may be erected in this vicinity, it was reported, but because of the absence of fire hazards there, permission to construct the building was granted. Dr. Fred L. Tucker and Commissioner Lawrence Hulbert opposed the granting of the permit.

A full size umbrella which may be folded and carried in one's pocket has been invented.

Saying Goodbye At Oakland 'Y' Camp

For several hundred Oakland County boys the summer camp age, the saying of school in June will bring re-encounter of such scenes as this. From every corner of the county, the boys will flock to the Y. M. C. A. Camp on Loon Lake, near Insoo County, for the weeks which many educators now declare to be the most vital of the whole year.

The late Dr. Charles Eliot of Harvard characterized the summer camp as America's outstanding contribution in the field of education. Like the committee of Oakland County citizens who made possible the founding of the camp, several hundred parents in the county, fathers and mothers of the 400 boys who shared the camp benefits last year, believe that Dr. Eliot was right, and that the lessons learned during the few fleeting weeks of summer easily rank with those so painstakingly learned in school.

Advocates of the summer camp point out that camp and school alike are designed to equip the boy to meet the problems of life. And in the administration of summer camps it has been possible to draw a close parallel between the life of today and the serious life of tomorrow.

To begin with, the boys are self-governing. Camp is run by the Camp Council, consisting of one representative from each tent, the leaders' council and various committees made up of the boys themselves. Each boy discovers that the very start with all problems of discipline. The boy contributes his share because he is a unit of the whole, just as he will later have to share in real life.

The boys at the camp are organized into groups of seven, each group occupying a tent with a senior counselor, who is a college man chosen for his ability to work with boys, and a junior counselor, who is a high school student, acting as assistant to his senior and advisor to the boys. This junior counselor is trained to assume the senior counselor's duties when he comes of age.

Each tent elects a boy to serve as camp cook. The council itself chooses a president for the camp, and takes an active part in every phase of camp administration. It has a hand in preparation of menus, in sanitation, health, and various other matters pertaining to the general welfare.

By the time the average boy has carried his share of responsibility throughout the camping period, he has consciously or unconsciously begun to grasp one of the major lessons which he will need all through life. He has learned that existence in society is a matter of give and take, in which individual must do his rightful part. The routine last summer, the initial season at the camp, was entirely harmonious. The boys entered readily into the management of their own affairs, requiring but little guidance from their elders at the camp. The sum plan will be in effect when the season opens this year, and mothers and fathers again turn homeward, leaving their sons to absorb further discipline. The boy contributes his

Court of Honor was discussed at a meeting of the Scoutmaster Council Tuesday. It is planned to have those that are to receive awards stand on the platform at the beginning of the program thus dignifying the marching-up of the Scouts in several groups for each award. The program will be a large extent in the hands of the Scoutmaster Assistants. In addition several stunts will be put on by the Scouts.

Tenderfoot initiation by the Bat patrol will take place at the meeting of Troop 1 next Tuesday. Plans for their overnight hike at Camp George which was postponed from last month and will take place this month were completed. The Bear and the Stag patrol will go on the troop's extensive hunting, and the last two patrol contests. Elimination of tardiness and absence discussed and given by the patrol leaders for action.

At their regular meeting last Tuesday, Troop 1 carried out its usual program of drill and instruction. A book of songs is being collected by Troop 2. These will be mimeographed and bound. A talk on some merit badges was on the program for Troop 3 meeting, last Wednesday.

The overnight hike of Troop 4 at Camp George last week was a success. A nature study was led by Tyrrell and the group on a fashionable snipe hunt organized. Drill and a few games were on the program for the meeting of Troop 4 last Tuesday. Advancement for the Court of Honor was emphasized. E. C. Flatman of the troop committee was present. Mr. Flatman was formerly an English Scout and enjoys the distinction of having been the first First Class Scout in the City of Detroit.
