May Day Will Be Observed Here As Child Health Day

For the first time in the history of Birmingham, the village Friday will join the county, state and nation in an annual observance of May Day as Child Health Day.

The observance here will take the form of a clinic for infants and children of pre-school age conducted by the village health department under the supervision of Dr. William Lloyd Kemp, health officer, and Mrs. Olga Benning, village public health nurse.

The clinic has been conceived by Dr. Kemp and Mrs. Benning as an undertaking of constructive and lasting value to take the place of the traditional pagantry and speed-making of the usual May Day program.

Their purpose in holding the clinic only for younger children is to discover physical defects while still in the curable stage, and to give the children an opportunity to repair their health before entering school.

The parents in the village are urged to bring their children to the clinic whether or not they are known to have physical defects. The examinations will be both medical and dental, and will be free of charge.

The constructive work of the May Day program will not come to an end with Friday's clinic. Children who are examined at the clinic and found defective will be referred to suitable hospitals and duplicates of their cases will be kept by the health department to be used in checking with the subjects to make certain that the ailments have been reported and treatment begun.

The clinic will be held in the commission room of the Municipal Building. Examinations will be given from 10 a. m. to 12 noon, and 1 to 4 p. m. A 20-minute program of moving pictures on health subjects will be shown in the afternoon.

Transportation to and from the clinic will be furnished by the Community House and welfare organizations. The program also has the cooperation of local doctors and dentists, St. Joseph Mercy Hospital, the Oakland County Health Department and Tuberculosis Association, local public schools and the Holy Name School.

Villagers and the Village

By THE WANDERER

Where Woodward avenue becomes a double lane thoroughfare at Brady Lane in Bloomington, results in a large percentage of the arrests of drunken motorists in the vicinity of Hills Village, the Wanderer observes. Normally, only few sober motorists fail to make the right turn at Brady Lane and none of the drunk drivers make more than a few blocks before they are arrested by the police.

ed the tie during his collegiate days and that he put it on Monday morning when his mother was not looking. How his mother failed to hear the rickety tie just another one of the mysteries of life. He did not explain how he managed to get the tie on without suffering from blindness and deafness, but we presume he gradually became accustomed to the cravat when he was younger and stronger. Why he put it on Monday could not be learned by this Wanderer.
