REARWARD AND THAT'S THE END OF THE LINE

It seems to me that any movement to start a real Third Party in the political life of the United States should have among its leaders men who are not only practical business men...

Senator Couzens is a rich man who knows the struggles of poverty. He has gathered to himself a huge fortune, and then stayed awake nights figuring out a practical plan for diverting part of his millions to the aid of people...

It is true, of course, that Senator Couzens can never assist in the work of the nation as he has done in Canada. But certainly his sympathies are with the average citizen...

A few weeks ago the Episcopalians, joined by other townships, gathered together in the Third district, and paid tribute to the memory of the late labor given by G. C. Kemp...
