HOLD CRASH VICTIMS RITES

Charles L. Adams, 45, Electrical Engineer, Dies Of Injuries

Funeral services were held Monday for Charles L. Adams, 45 years old, 231 Oakland avenue, who died in Pontiac General Hospital Friday night of injuries received in an automobile collision at the corner of Perry and Dodge roads Dec. 9.

He had suffered a fractured skull, broken jawbone and severe cuts when the car he was driving collided with another driven by Mrs. Mary Martineau of Romeo. His life was despaired of from the beginning, and he never regained consciousness.

Mr. Adams was an electrical engineer by profession, and with the exception of nine years spent in traveling on ocean steamers off the west coast as an electrician, he had lived his entire life in this vicinity.

He was born on a farm at the corner of Lahser and Fourteen Mile Roads, later moving to another farm on Maple road, from where he came to Birmingham about 10 years ago.

Services were held for him at the home at 2 P. M. Monday, with burial in Greenwood Cemetery. Rev. W. Clarence Wright of the First Presbyterian Church officiated.

Installation ceremonies of Birmingham Lodge No. 44, F. and A. M., will be held in the Masonic Temple tonight with Frank C. Deer, 1044 Knox street, heading the incoming list of officers as worshipful master. He succeeds James W. Parry.

AUTOMOBILE, PARKED IN DRIVE, STOLEN

A small sedan parked in the driveway at 312 Adams road was stolen Saturday night while the owner, R. C. Lewis, 922 Wimple drive, was visiting friends, he reported to police.

In the car was a woman's traveling bag containing an evening wrap, gown and shoes, and a quantity of valuable buckles.

Not All Suits Are Sold In The Clothing Stores

Scores Are Given Away At Relief Commissary, Along With Shoes, Coats And Food

"A suit? Yes sir, right in here, please. How will this gray one fit you? It's a nice one around the shoulders, I'm afraid. Let's try this brown one."

"Yes, that's much better. You like it? Fine, then here are the trousers. You're welcome, I'm sure. If you need anything else, come again."

No, this is not the patter of a salesman in a clothing store. It is the theme conversation to be heard at almost any time every week-day afternoon at the central Birmingham office of the Village Unemployment Relief Committee at 251 Martin street.

The Women Volunteer Services speaker might be any one of a number of public-spirited women who volunteer their services from 2 to 5 every afternoon in aid in dispensing food and clothing to Birmingham's unfortunates. It is quite likely to be that of Mrs. Caroling Utegraff, chairman of the committee on clothing, Mrs. F. G. Westcott or Mrs. Alice Haldane, all of whom are "on duty" every afternoon.

But the conversations are not limited to suits alone. They may be concerned with coats, shoes, dresses or articles of food for the commissary is a literal clearing house for the necessities of life.

The entire house is given over to the committee's activities. Just now the upper story is comparatively bare, but every article that will be stacked with canned goods, vegetables and other foodstuffs before long, according to Arthur J. Kane, chairman of the subcommittee on foods. The cellar is well stocked now with potatoes and cabbages.

Clothing Room
The front room on the main floor is taken up mainly with two long, low tables piled high with men's shirts, woolen mittens, socks, bed clothing, underwear and other pieces of wearing apparel for both sexes.

Off to the side in the rear are the racks with men's suits and overcoats and women's dresses and wraps. Walls and shelves are lined all around with shoes of every description—high and low, brown and black, every size from the smallest baby's to the largest outdoor laborer's.

"Everything is a dandy line of suits," says Mrs. Utegraff, "and fit, on the average, five or six men a day. We are in need of overcoats, though, and could use more coats and dresses for women."

Everything Clean
Local cleaners have offered to do this work for us, but so far the women's organizations and other groups which furnish the clothes have been so good about doing it themselves that we have had no occasion to accept the offer," Mrs. Utegraff says.

In another rear room at the left are stored the car foodstuffs which have already been collected. These include canned soup, flour and practically everything else that would be found on the shelves of an up-to-date grocery store.

"Most articles of food are coming in in satisfactory quantities," Mrs. Kane said. "There are a few others of which we are in dire need. These include, especially,

Tilden Displays Tennis Wizardry At Cranbrook

Lanky Pro In Top Form For Dazzling Exhibition

By CLARENCE S. WARNER
Before an enthusiastic gallery, William T. Tilden, II, and three other members of his professional tennis tour, Albert Burke, Emmet Parr and Bobby Seller provided a tennis exhibition at Cranbrook School last Monday evening that was eminently successful.

The large Cranbrook gymnasium has a floor space entirely adequate for the net game, and on the hard-wood floors was laid down the special green canvas "court" brought by the players. The lighting was excellent and enabled the players to perform in a manner seldom witnessed on an indoor court.

The exhibition had as its feature a singles match between Tilden and Burke, the Irish professional. Tilden seemed at the peak of his game and he has rarely played better indoors. He used his repertoire of strokes with telling effect and displayed a line drive and cross-court shot with drop-shots and twists.

Service Sparks
His famous cannon-ball service came into play early in the match and helped to establish a comfortable lead that resulted in easy victory. Burke, who uses the "fought" but uncommensurate courage but did not display the strategy and speed necessary to stop the tall Philadelphian in a happy mood, from the start of the match it was clearly Tilden's evening. Feeling confident and in a happy mood, he played in a manner that left no doubt as to his supreme mastery of the game, winning in straight sets, 6-4, 6-2, 6-1.

Later, Tilden and Sellers defeated Burke and Parr in an exciting five set doubles battle. The close net work of both pairs furnished thrills galore and earned clamorous and repeated applause from the gallery.

Tilden, Pare Shine
Tilden's play stood out with his padding drives and short angle shots. Pare played accurately at the net and made seemingly impossible recoveries. The set scores were 4-6, 6-0, 3-6, 6-4, 6-4.

It was apparent that Tilden enjoyed himself immensely throughout the evening. He like youngsters and there were a lot of them there.

"It is fun to play to them," he said in the locker room after the matches. "They enjoy it, and I get a great kick out of it. I hope we can play here in the spring on the outdoor courts, where we can give them better tennis."

Asked when he thought America would recover the Davis Cup, he replied:

"I think England will play the challenge round against France next year. As to when America will recover the cup, you can't tell. The English team is just as young as we are and at least as good."

Tilden was entertained at lunch last Friday by W. O. Stevens, headmaster of Cranbrook School, and students, afterwards giving a 45-minute talk on the fundamentals of the game. He spent the afternoon on the grounds, viewing the school buildings and talking to the boys.

He returned again on Monday for lunch, and to supervise the laying of his portable floor in the gymnasium in preparation for the evening's matches. In the afternoon he also devoted two hours to individual instruction for boys interested in the game.
