mitter of directors, headed by A. Douglas Jamieson, has drawn up plans to entertain the boys similar to those followed out on last year's party.

If the weatherman is favorable enough to keep everything frozen and snowy, a winter sports party will be the chief feature of the afternoon. The boys and faculty will leave school after lunch and motor to Camp Brady.

Following the outdoors sports, the boys will go into the camp for supper, and then assemble around the large fireplace for a series of amusements and talks.

The Village Playhouse had been firing full-time since noon on the Saturday Players were to give their most recent presentation, including "Dreamy Kid."

heating system been unattended for half-an-hour longer, however, a Playhouse in rains probably would have greeted the theatergoers.

Mrs. Hope F. Halgren tells this Wanderer that the Community House certainly appreciated the response of villagers to the appeal through last week's Eccentric for additional clothing for the Thrift Shop.

Hit in the eye with a pickle at last year's Father-Son banquet, Leigh Lynch has been tremulous about attending any of this year's affairs for fear of a similar eventuality, this Wanderer learned, quite inadvertently.

School board members are so proud of the new Barnum stage curtain as though it were in their own homes. It has the best track of any curtain in the village, and shoves with a wave of the hand.
