Boy Wins $275 Prize

The expression so often plaintively heard that "no one, that one really knows, ever wins the prizes" has been disproved this time by an 11-year-old boy, Neil M. Stark, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry S. Stark of Vinewood avenue. Neil, who is a student in the sixth grade of Quarton school, received word last week that he had won a prize of $275 in a contest sponsored by a Detroit newspaper. The contest required the fitting of proper names to about 30 picture puzzles. Neil missed the large prize of $750 by the narrow margin of one wrong guess.

Where Were We, Now?

The audience held their breath as Jack Braveboy, the hero, killed the last of the Indians.

He staggered about; he almost fainted with loss of blood. Then he gazed about him. Suddenly his voice rang out with hope.

"See!" he cried, "the dawn breaks bright upon yonder topmost heights!"

The stage remained in darkness.

"See!" he yelled again, "the dawn breaks bright upon yonder topmost heights!"

Still darkness reigned.

"The dawn! The dawn! The dawn!" he screamed, raging about the stage. "It breaks! The dawn!!"

A head popped o'er the mountain top. "Old 'ard, guv'nor!" said the head, "don't be in such a bloomin' 'urry, someone's bin an' turned the gas off!"—Sporting and Dramatic.
