THEATERS

CIVIC THEATER
"Turn to the Right," popular comedy-melodrama of 15 years ago will be revived at the Detroit Civic Theater next week, opening Monday, Mar. 2, and closing Sunday, Mar. 8.

Miss Bonstelle will appear in the revival in the role of Mrs. Bascom, the charming, motherly person who is the cause of the reform of three ex-convicts. Mrs. Bascom is the "farm woman who is about to be evicted because of owing $125. With the help of her son—Joe Bascom—one of the convicts for the peach crop, makes the peaches into preserves and pays off the debt.

Miss Bonstelle's players performed "Turn to the Right" exactly 10 years ago with Kenneth McKeen, Edna Metzger, and other favorites in the cast. Walter Sherwin will again play his old part of Deacon Tillinger.

CASS THEATER
Only 22 leading cities of America have seen the great Freiburger Passion Players in their spectacular—"The Passion Play," as presented in English at the Cass Theater for one week beginning Monday evening, Mar. 2.

Mail orders arriving daily from all parts of Michigan give assurance of the play's success.

The company is headed by four of the famous Fassnacht family whose ancestors have appeared in this spectacle at Freiburger, generation after generation since the year 1760. Georg Fassnacht, Jr., appears as "The Christus"; Georg Fassnacht, Sr., plays the part of "Judas"; August Fassnacht appears as "Mary," the Mother of Jesus; and Detty Schuman Fassnacht as "Mary Magdalene." The balance of the cast each has been especially selected for their respective roles and the colossal scenic production is the most elaborate and complete of any religious spectacle extant today. The play is presented in English.

SHUBERT-LAFAYETTE THEATER

"The Racket," modern melodrama of today's racketeers and their methods, which was realistic to the extent that it was barred from Chicago (its locale), contains a second week at the Lafayette Theater, beginning next Sunday night.

Written by a Chicago newspaperman, Bartlett Cormack, the central figure of "The Racket," is a modern gangster, Robert Harrison, who plays Captain McQuigg, the honest detective who is really out to "get" Nick Sears, king of the underworld. Three acts are laid in a lonely police station which becomes the center of interest when the gangster's baby brother on a "petting" party stumbles in and throws opportunity to the demoted captain who promptly holds him hostage. The big brother arrives and tries to settle matters by shooting the witnesses but there are too many of them.

Lee Smith is the sweetheart of the gangster's baby brother, George Sweet and George Pembroke play two cynical reporters and Warren Parker is the color reporter who gains his experience too fast. Scarci is played by John Hamilton.

ORCHESTRAL HALL
"Beauty and Tragedy Under the Sea" will be the title of a fascinating lecture which J. E. Williamson, famous explorer of the ocean depths, will deliver at Orchestral Hall on Friday evening, Mar. 6, and Saturday Matinee, Mar. 7. The lecture will be illustrated with motion pictures, many of them in natural colors.

Mr. Williamson, who began his career as a newspaper cartoonist and later made a name as a writer, photographer and artist in oil and water colors, has devoted his last 15 years to laying open the secrets that the ocean has treasured for ages. By means of a submarine device, which he invented, he is able to study life undersea from a massive globular steel chamber provided with a large window and illuminated with powerful electric lights. From this submersible studio he has been able to make the

India and Gardens
Intrigue Readers

Interest in India has created a demand at the Baldwin Public Library for books on the history and social conditions of that country. The following books have been added to the shelves recently: "Disillusioned India" by Durand; "Power of India" by Fynn; "Voiceless India" by Emerson; "Land of the Black Pagoda" by Horn; and "The 'His Own Story' by Gandhi.

Although early in the season, gardening books are beginning to attract attention. The library has books for the amateur as well as the expert. A new book, "Garden Pools, Large and Small" not only tells what plants to select but gives definite details for the construction of different sized pools. It will be interesting to gardeners who already have pools as it tells about fertilizers and what to do when unpleasant things develop, like scum and mosquito.

WHAT'S BECOME OF OLD-TIME AUTOMOBILES?

What has become of the old time cars? Where are the makes which used to be so familiar on the streets of Birmingham in the days of ten, fifteen and twenty years ago?

Stroll along the Woodward or Maple avenue thoroughfares any busy day of the week, make a list of the different kinds of automobiles you see parked there. There is the Ford, the Buick, the Buick, a sprinkling of Hudson, some Essexes, Chevrolets, Dodges and a few others. Possibly the name plates of a dozen different makes will be seen in the parade, just as you see a handful of the makes that at one time or other since the advent of the motor car, made their way to the buying public of the world. Some have survived, but most of them have passed into oblivion.

Traded In Again.

In all probability the metal work in the car in which you are riding today is reclaimed from a half dozen different makes of the old days. They were traded in on new cars which more lasting qualities and finally found their way to the furnaces where they were once more reduced to metal and again worked into the later and newer makes.

Of course since 1900 there have been makes which have remained on the market. They are, of course, quite different looking machines from what they were in the old days. Back then, they were just motor vehicles. There were none of the conveniences and comforts to be found on them that really make a present day car workable.

Most of you who have known anything about automobiles at all will recall the Apperson. Well, there are no Appersons today. Then there was the Ambassador of 1922. Back a few years earlier, say about 1917, it was not uncommon to see a Dixie Flyer. The Star had its rise in 1920 and for a few years claimed the attention of the auto buying public, but today, there are few Stars left in the country. They will be found on some junk pile awaiting the scrap iron buyer. In 1912 some of you will recall the Mighty Michigan. Also about 1917 few years thereafter the Ben Hur could be seen. The row-Elkhart of 1915 and the Burt of 1916, and a little earlier, say about 1910, the E. M. F., all of them have had their rise and fall. Then you will recall the Lorraine in 1920 and the R. C. H. in 1912 and the Stoddard-Dayton in 1904.

Four Times As Many.

Along about 1905 there were four times as many different kinds of automobiles on the American market than there are today. Notwithstanding this fact the output of all of these different factories during the entire time between 1900 and 1905, was less than the average monthly production of the present day.

In 1903 there were 63 different new makes of automobiles which came into being during that year, and for the most part the only thing that is kept of them is perhaps the advertisement which can be found in some magazine of that particular year.

The total output of automobiles of all kinds in 1903 was only 11,235 cars. Then let your eyes drop down column dealing with automobile statistics to the year 1929 which is regarded as the peak year for that year, and you will find that the entire output of motor cars of the passenger type for that year reached the astounding figure of 4,749,898. This means automobiles and not money, if you are interested in values here's the wholesale value

FINED AS RECKLESS

Arraigned before Judge Floyd S. Buck on a charge of reckless driving Tuesday, Theodore Mostik of Williamston, Mich., pleaded guilty and was given the option of a $15 fine or 10 days in jail. Mostik was arrested by Sgt. Anderson of the Bloomfield Hills Police. Sgt. Anderson told the court Mostik drove a truck and trailer, loaded with brick, at 40 miles an hour down the Stinchfield Hill, endangering the lives of other motorists on Woodward avenue.

1931 Fishing Laws Now Being Prepared

Lansing, Feb. 26.—Listing all lake and stream designations for the 1931 season as determined by the Conservation Commission at its February meeting, the new Digest of Fishing Laws is now being prepared by the Fish Division of the Department of Conservation.

The changes in designations of trout lakes, trout streams, pike lakes and small streams will constitute the only changes in the Digest compared with 1930.

No changes in fishing laws and regulations are expected this year and will probably remain the same as during 1930.

The new Digest is expected to be printed and ready for distribution some time before the season opens in "pike" lakes, May 1, so that all anglers will be thoroughly familiar with lake and stream designations before the fishing season begins. Copies of the new Digest will be sent to all licensees of the Department and to all field men for general distribution.

Twenty three lakes in 11 upper and lower peninsula counties have been added to the list of "pike" lakes for all species except bass, bluegill and sunfish, which begin May 1, rather than June 25 when fishing begins in all other lakes.
