H. A. O'Dell Opens Architectural Office With Penobscot Designer As Associate

H. Augustus O'Dell of "Stitchfield," Tiverton road, architect for a number of Bloomfield Hills residences, and identified with the building of Webster Hall and the new Stock Exchange building in Detroit, has joined Wirt C. Rowland, the designer of the Penobscot and Buhl buildings in operation in Detroit, under the aegis of the firm "H. Augustus O'Dell and Wirt C. Rowland, Associate Architects."

Together the architects are making drawings for a new elementary school building on Kercheval and Conant streets, for the residence of Chairman of the Board of Education, Charles B. Randall, who also designed the dwelling for Col. Sidney Waldon on his 400-acre estate east of Clarkston. Tam O'Shanter Country Club, a mile south of Orchard Lake, only a few miles from the city, was designed by Mr. O'Dell, who also planned the locker rooms at the Bloomfield Country Club and the stables and riding-ring at the Bloomfield Open Hunt Club.

New Minister of First Presbyterian Church Is Welcomed by Men's Club

An even hundred men, most of them members of the local First Presbyterian church's Men's Club, gathered at the church last Thursday evening, to honor the new minister, Rev. Clarence Wright. Robert R. Allen, president of the club, presided, assisted by W. E. Moody, toastmaster. Excellent venison buffet supper followed the program. The venison was prepared by the village president, who annually hunts deer up near Alpena. The feast was prepared by a committee headed by Joseph Stroup, Hendrik Brusse, K. B. Olsen, and others.

$4,000. Since May, 1925, faculty members will pay five per cent of their annual salaries into the fund, and the University will match this with another five per cent, or sufficient to provide the necessary balance to defray the pension payments.

Following brief remarks by Robert R. Allen, in which the history of the club was outlined, the program was turned over to Mr. Moody, a local citizen who is an official of the Yellow Truck and Manufacturing Co. William G. Lee, chair leader of the church, led the meeting in community singing, followed by piano and vocal solos by Kenneth Schulz and C. Bernard Schmidt, of Pontiac.

A real musical treat by the Ionic Masonic quartet, of Detroit, with Herbert Rapp, who resides just west of Birmingham, at the piano, was a feature of the evening. The quartet consists of Alex McGregor, William G. Lee, W. M. Siver, and George Davies. Charles S. Kimball, of Hawthorne road, led the choir, and the new minister, Mr. Wright, the latter, in turn, gave a short biographical sketch of his life, from the time when he was born 29 years ago in Los Angeles, Cal., through his school and college days, as a Princeton graduate, touching upon his most recent pastorate in the east, and finally declaring that Birmingham and his new church affiliation offers, in his opinion, splendid opportunities for a man of God.

The preacher made a fine impression upon his audience, among whom were Seymour D. Adams, Robert R. Allen, Harry Allen, Howard J. Bell, S. D. White, Bel, George B. Bailey, Otto F. Boer, Edgar L. Bailey, L. H. Billings, Hendrik Brusse, Leonard C. Brown, Christopher Brien, Robert E. Bethel.
